Former President Asserts He Kept Plans From Cabinet and That He Would "Have Found a Law" to Uphold Action in Coal Fields.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 27.—Theodore Roosevelt, as President, was ready to take measures "equivalent to action in time of war" to end the great strike in the anthracite mines in 1902. He was determined to take action, even though an effort should be made later to impeach him for it.

Roosevelt so testified today in giving testimony here before a referee in the suit of Alexander T. Wales, a lawyer, of Birmingham, N. Y., against John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, for fees he alleges are due him for the part he took in settling the strike.

"In September," said Roosevelt, "the situation began to grow acute. It was a situation full of menace to the country. I asked to appear before me representatives of the operators and of the miners. I regarded the attitude of John Mitchell, then head of the miners, as reasonable and the attitude of the operators as unreasonable and offensive."

After telling of his efforts to settle the strike through a commission of arbitration, which Grover Cleveland appointed to head, he continued:

"I made up my mind that I would have to take drastic action unless the operators and miners got together. I intended to send in the United States army—I only wanted to get it there and I'd take care of the situation."

"I told Senator Quay of Pennsylvania I would act, and I would guarantee that the people of the Eastern seaboard would have coal and have it right away. I told him that if he would help me he could vote to impeach me later if he wished. I asked Quay to arrange to have Gov. Stone of Pennsylvania, when I notified the Governor, send me word that he was unable to control the situation and then I would send in the army."

"I planned to have Gen. Schofield go in and take charge with the troops and act practically as a receiver for the mines. I told the General it would be equivalent to action taken in time of war and that he must have the authority—no need to a writ from a Judge or anything else except my commands. He said he would do so."

Kept His Plan Secret.
Col. Roosevelt said he kept his plan secret, even from the members of his cabinet. The operators, he said, persisted in their uncompromising plan until finally a change came and after many disputes about the membership of the commission one was appointed and the strike ended.

Col. Roosevelt was constantly sparring with Attorney Wales, who conducted his own case, when under cross-examination. Wales frequently asked him if he bent forward shaking his finger at the lawyer and scowling at him. He said he had never seen Wales before and knew nothing of any part which the plaintiff took in settling the strike.

Wales tried to make Col. Roosevelt admit he was willing to violate the laws, defy the courts and disregard the Constitution to settle the strike.

"I wouldn't accept your interpretation of the Constitution," Col. Roosevelt retorted. "I proposed that every action I took should be in accordance with the Constitution as Abraham Lincoln construed it."

"Would you have settled the strike, law or no law?" persisted the plaintiff. "I'd have settled it," Col. Roosevelt said. "I'd have found a law."

OHIO DEMANDS JOHN D. PAY $5,000,000 TAXES

CLEVELAND, O., May 27.—John D. Rockefeller was placed upon the Cuyahoga County tax duplicate list today for $5,000,000. Of this amount, it was stated by Tax Commissioner Fowler and Agnew, $25,000,000 was for Standard Oil Co. stock.

The Rockefeller tax return will be certified to the County Auditor within a few days. At the present rate it would return approximately $5,000,000 in taxes. Rockefeller's attorneys say their client has returned $5,000,000 in New York State this year, exempting him from taxation here.

Italian Count Is Here to Woo Miss Scudder

Lieut. Caesare Buzzi Has Been in St. Louis Two Weeks and Will Stay Longer—Fell in Love With Heiress in Rome.

MISS MAUD CUPPLES-SCUDDER

All the way from Rome has come Lieut. Count Caesare Buzzi, a handsome young Italian nobleman, to press his suit for the hand of Miss Maud Cupples-Scudder of 703 West Pine boulevard, one of the heirs of the late Samuel Cupples.

The Count has been a guest at the Racquet Club for two weeks, by courtesy of having Cupples-Scudder's hand in a victory card.

His card expired Wednesday, but under the rules of the club a visitor may obtain an extension of two weeks. The Count asked for and obtained the extension.

So far the Count has not won Miss Cupples-Scudder's hand. He has learned, however, that he is only one of a number of eligible young men who are trying to win her heart. But learning this has served only to strengthen the ardor and impetuosity for his courtship.

Miss Cupples-Scudder's friends, who have been intently watching the progress, if any, of the Count's suit, are telling with great interest of the Count's falling in love with her at first sight when she was in Rome a few weeks ago.

The Count had known Miss Cupples-Scudder only a month in Rome when she started for home with her mother, Mrs. Amelia Cupples-Scudder. The Count pleaded with members of the Scudder family to join him on their return to America as a passenger on the same liner. The request was refused.

But the Count took the next steamer, arriving in New York at 12:30 p. m. on Wednesday, two weeks ago. The first train for St. Louis departed five hours later. He was aboard.

Count Speaks Little English.
The Count has been introduced among Miss Scudder's acquaintances in St. Louis. He speaks little English, but does speak French. As a result, his acquaintance in St. Louis has been limited, to quite an extent, to those who can converse in French or Italian.

In Rome, it is said, Count Buzzi is known as "The Beau." He is 25 years old and the son of a wealthy banker in Rome. He is said to be a member of the aviation corps of the Italian army and a member of King Emmanuel's bodyguard.

BOAT IS REPORTED TO HAVE RESCUED AVIATOR HAMEL

Said to Have Landed Missing Flyer at South Shields, but Report Is Unconfirmed.

NEW CASTLE, England, May 27.—The Evening Mail says that Gustave Hamel, the British aviator, who had been given up for lost in the English Channel, landed today from a fishing boat at South Shields.

The fishing boat which saved Hamel was a foreign vessel which had been driven out of her course and this caused the delay in giving information as to the rescue of the aviator.

The local police declare the statement in the Evening Mail that Hamel had landed at South Shields is untrue.

Hamel left Le Crotoy, France, last Saturday in a new machine to fly to Hendon, England. As he did not arrive, it was supposed he had met with an accident and torpedo boats spent several days searching for him. Hamel, a few days ago, announced his intention of attempting to cross the Atlantic in an aeroplane next fall.

Officials Have No Confirmation of Hamel's Reported Rescue.
LONDON, May 27.—Neither the officials of the Hendon aerodrome nor Hamel's father have received any confirmation of the reported rescue of the aviator.

AMERICANS MAKE BIG 'KILLING' ON ENGLISH DERBY

Durbar II, Owned by H. B. Duryea, Wins $32,500 Stake in Field of 30.

ODDS WERE AT 25 TO 1

First Time Since Croker's Orby Won in 1907 That American Has Taken Prize.

By Associated Press.
EPSON, May 27.—The Derby, the best known of the English classic horse races, was won today by an American horse, Herman B. Duryea's Durbar II. Thirty horses ran, the largest field in a Derby since 1883.

The winner's recent form in France had been considered so poor that he was regarded here as a rank outsider and odds of 25 to 1 were laid against him in the clubs last night. Today he had no trouble and won in a canter by three lengths from two other outsiders, Hapsburg and Peter the Hermit.

The betting just before the start of the race was 20 to 1 against Durbar II, 33 to 1 against Hapsburg and 100 to 1 against Peter the Hermit.

Duryea had great faith in his horse, which was backed for large amounts by the American contingent.

The jubilation among the big crowd of transatlantic visitors was distinctly noticeable as the winner was led into the paddock.

Favorite Gets Bad Start.
The post-race fever that flattered their supporters at any stage of the race. Kennymore who led the betting, behaved so badly at the post that he was finally sent away, he was left in a bad position. Polymorpha made all the running to the half distance with Black Jester, Hapsburg, Dan Russell and Durbar II close up. Rounding Tattenham corner, Durbar II jumped in on the rail and took up the running. He held the command to the finish, easily stalling off several challengers. Dan Russell was fourth.

The time of the race was 2 min 33 sec, a fraction of a second quicker than the average.

King and Queen Present.
King George and Queen Mary were present at the race. They were met by the staff of the United States Embassy while distributed about the course were large numbers of Americans from the resident colony as well as from the other side of the Atlantic.

The past glories of the journey by road from London to Epson, the advent of automobiles and the high spirits usually characterizing the crowd on Derby day were in some degree dampened by the presence of an army of police encamped about the ground and forming lines along the course to prevent any attempt at violence by militant suffragettes. It would have required an airship to circumvent the precautions taken by the police.

Ada Rice, supposed to be a militant suffragette, was arrested on Epson Downs today after she had discharged a pistol loaded with blank cartridges at a policeman. The powder burned through one of his legs. The woman asserted her husband had handed the weapon to her this morning for use in case she was molested. She indignantly repudiated the suggestion that she was a suffragette. The weapon contained six blank cartridges.

The last American racehorse owner to win the English Derby was Richard Croker, whose Orby won in 1907.

The Derby stakes was established in 1780, but races had taken place on the course as early as 1660. The stakes are valued at $32,500 and are for three colts and fillies of 3 years old. The course is about one mile and a half in length.

For this year's race there were originally 35 entries. The great favorite for this year's race, The Tetarch, was scratched a few weeks ago.

Durbar II, today's winner, is a bay colt by Rabaldus, out of Armenia. He was bred in France.

Sir John Turley's Kennymore, ruled the favorite, the odds being 9 to 4. King George's horse, Brakpear, was second choice at 11 to 1.

The odds on Durbar II were 25 to 1.

JOHN E. LIGGETT TAKES DIVORCEE AS SECOND WIFE

Millionaire, Formerly of St. Louis, Weds Mrs. Clarence Harvey and Goes Abroad.

Couple Are at Sea on Waterland Before Friends Learn of Their Romance.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 27.—Out at sea on the big Waterland today are two very interesting young persons whose friends may be enjoying a honeymoon trip after each had previously met with shipwreck on the matrimonial sea. The fact of their romance came to the surface when it was found that among the passengers on the sailing list were Mr. and Mrs. John E. Liggett.

John E. Liggett is a millionaire, formerly of St. Louis whose social and financial connections are the best. Mrs. Liggett, according to their friends was Mrs. Clarence Harvey, formerly a stage favorite and the wife of a comedian of wide reputation.

Liggett's first wife had just procured a divorce from him. Mrs. Harvey had just received a final decree in her suit against her husband. The court records at Augusta, Maine, hold the brief record of Mrs. Liggett's divorce and the referee's report recommending a decree for Mrs. Harvey was confirmed in the Supreme Court of New York in January of this year. Mrs. Liggett's divorce was granted in March. The custody of two children was given her and the financial settlement was privately arranged.

She Dined Regrettably.
Report had for some time linked the names of Liggett and Mrs. Harvey. Instant rumor had it that they were married at Asheville, N. C., some time about April 1. Whatever fact might have surrounded the wedding it was kept secret with much success.

Mrs. Harvey maintained her home at the Bellport at Broadway and Eighty-sixth street. A couple of days before the sailing of the Waterland her trunk was packed and she was seen to depart in her car. Mrs. Liggett, who was not assigned to quarters when the ship left—a circumstance that was not particularly notable on such a vessel.

Harvey a Well-Known Actor.
The new Mrs. Liggett was, before her marriage to John E. Liggett, Mrs. Victor Colby. She was prima donna of "The Merry Countess," and was well known on the stage. Harvey, from whom she was recently divorced, is one of the best known comedians on the stage. He has been married to the Shuberts. He was a page in the United States Senate in 1881 and handed to Chester A. Arthur, then presiding over that body, the famous resignations of Senators Roscoe Conkling and Thomas C. Platt.

Mrs. Harvey filed her divorce suit her husband made public a statement that he intended filing a counter-suit, and insisted that he would institute proceedings for alienation of affections against "a man prominent in society and business." Harvey said that he would ask for $100,000 and that he did not name the man publicly.

There is nothing in the record to show that he had Liggett in mind in making his statement, but he charged his wife with infidelity at Paris, London and various other points over the sea.

Closely following the Harvey troubles there came from Augusta a brief dispatch saying that Mrs. Margaret C. Liggett, who was Miss Margaret Gay, of Boston had obtained a divorce and the custody of two children, Lawrence, nine years of age, and Margaret, six years of age. No light was thrown in the Maine story upon the family troubles of the Liggetts.

Liggett is the son of Mrs. Laura L. Hill, widow of Gov. John F. Hill, of Maine. His father was one of the famous tobacco traders of St. Louis, and a fortune estimated at several millions.

Young Liggett's grandfather was Norman J. Coleman of St. Louis, who was the first Secretary of Agriculture to serve during the Cleveland regime.

Were Married in South.
Liggett went away yesterday to the Essex Hotel at Fifty-sixth street and Madison avenue, and said goodbye to his children. It is understood that the former Mrs. Liggett, to whom the custody of the children was awarded by the Maine court, took them immediately thereafter to Boston. It was reported that Liggett settled upon his wife $750,000.

Liggett and Mrs. Harvey were secretly married in the South and traveled extensively in the South after the event, but still kept the marriage a secret.

MAN HURT IN 20-FOOT FALL ON PAGEANT STAGE

Electrician Suffers Two Fractured Ribs When He Drops From a Ladder.

Pageant Actor's Wife Who Tells of Being Attacked With Stones

MRS. JACK ANTHONY.

WOMAN HURT, SAYS HOODLUMS STONED HER FROM HORSE

Mrs. Jack Anthony, Wife of R. J. Jackman of Beatrice, Neb., Pageant Actor, Tells of Attack on Vandeventer.

A man rushed up to Patrolman Ryan at Grand and Easton avenues at 12:30 a. m. Wednesday and told him a woman had been seriously injured at Vandeventer and Easton avenues.

The policeman hastened to the scene and found Mrs. Jack Anthony, 23 years old, of 1824 North Grand avenue, who told him she had been stoned by hoodlums at that corner as she rode horseback toward her home from the Pageant dress rehearsal at Forest Park. Her husband, she said, is one of the Pageant performers.

Mrs. Anthony said she was struck by a shower of stones, which also struck her horse, which became frightened and threw her to the pavement with great force.

The policeman placed her upon a car and took her to the office of Dr. F. E. Peden, 1211 North Grand avenue, where it was found her collar bone and three ribs were fractured and her right knee dislocated. Mrs. Anthony refused to go to a hospital and was taken to her home.

The policeman said there was no sign of Mrs. Anthony's horse or of the boys who were arrested on the scene. He said Mrs. Anthony was conscious and moaning from her injuries.

The horse was found wandering about near the Kentucky stables, 1815 North Grand avenue, by one of the employees.

Mrs. Anthony, whose husband is in the livery business, is a skilled horsewoman.

Miss Emma Wheat, who boards at Mrs. Anthony's home, rode with her to and from the Pageant stage, but was not with her at the moment of the attack, having ridden around by another street.

Mrs. Anthony told a Post-Dispatch reporter she was riding east on Easton avenue and on reaching Vandeventer avenue saw several young men standing on the corner. They were not mere boys, but young men, she said, and they talked rudely, as if they had been drinking. She rode past the corner without thinking of danger, but just after she had passed them, she said, the stones began to fly about her.

After she fell from the horse, she said later, she had no distinct remembrance of what happened until she found herself in Dr. Peden's office. She had an impression that someone placed her on the horse and took her there.

She said she and Miss Wheat lost their way on the Forest Park driveway after leaving the Pageant stage, and went a long distance out of their way. Her husband, who takes part in one of the equestrian scenes in the Pageant, was with them at first, but they lost him.

Mrs. Anthony has a son, Jack Joe, 9 months.

MAN, 75, DIES 3 HOURS AFTER AUTO HITS HIM

R. J. Jackman, 75 years old, of Beatrice, Neb., who was struck and run over by an automobile on Lindell boulevard, west of King's highway, died at St. Luke's Hospital at midnight Tuesday, three hours after the accident.

The machine was owned and driven by Charles J. Boehm of 2633 Sullivan avenue, who was accompanied by his wife. Boehm, who surrendered at the Pageant boulevard station after taking Jackman to the hospital and Mrs. Boehm home, said he was not running the machine at excessive speed. Jackman suffered a fracture of one shoulder, a deep cut in his head, a broken hip and internal injuries.

According to Boehm's statement, he was driving west on Lindell boulevard and the accident happened about 20 feet west of King's highway. He said that he saw Jackman step off of the sidewalk to cross the street and that Jackman had safely walked out of the course of the machine when he suddenly seemed to become confused and, instead of walking ahead, stopped and stepped back directly in front of the auto. The fender struck him and knocked him down, and the wheels passed over him.

Boehm was held by the police until 12:30 a. m., when he furnished a common law bond. Jackman was unable to tell where he was stopping in St. Louis. After giving his name and saying that his home was in Beatrice, Neb., he became unconscious.

OFFICIALS HEAR HUERTA IS READY FOR ABDICATION

Mexico City Dispatches Say Delay in Carrying Out Plan to Arrange That the Dictator May Retire With Dignity.

He Is Expected to Quit His Country by Special Train Which Will Carry Him to Coast at Puerto Mexico.

Mediators, Having Smoothed Many Differences, Go to Toronto Where Great Garden Party Is Given.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 27.—Official dispatches, sent from Mexico City and received at a diplomatic source here today, say the "withdrawal" of Huerta is "possible" and that it is being delayed by the necessity of arrangements to permit the dictator to abdicate with dignity.

One Report Says Dictator Has Already Fled.
NEW YORK, May 27.—The New York Herald today prints the following dispatch from the city of Mexico, under date of March 26:

Gen. Huerta is missing tonight from the capital. It is believed he has left for Puerto Mexico, to take passage for Europe

Niagara Falls mediation conference. John Lind and C. A. Douglas, the latter the legal representative of the Constitutionalists, held what was termed a neutral conference today and later went to the State Department to take up the subject with Secretary Bryan.

What sudden turn in the negotiations brought about the new attitude of the Carranza group was not disclosed.

Secretary Bryan canceled his engagement to speak before the arbitration conference at Lake Mohonk, because he could not believe he ought to be away from Washington at this time, he said.

After the morning conference at the State Department and receiving the overnight dispatches, the Secretary went to the Capitol and conferred with some Senators on the Foreign Relations Committee.

Recurring published reports of the impending abdication of Huerta received much attention in official circles and in the diplomatic corps.

Jose Vasconcelos, one of the Carranza agents, who has been mentioned as a probable choice to represent Gen. Carranza at Niagara Falls, still is in the city; Luis Cabrera, another agent, arrived at New York today on the steamer Olympic from Europe; Fernando L. Calderon, a third Constitutional representative, is in El Paso. It has been said that if Carranza sent representatives to the Niagara conference, those three men probably would be selected.

Whatever might be the first conditions upon which Carranza would send representatives to the mediation conference, the fact that he may be willing to send them at all is generally regarded here as a favorable indication.

The Spanish Ambassador today asked for intercession of the United States with Gen. Carranza in behalf of two Velasco brothers at Monterey, threatened by Constitutionalists with a large forced loan.

The Spanish Vice-Consul at Torreon has arrived in the United States destitute, as a result of the Constitutionalists' capture of that city.

MINISTER QUILTS HUERTA CABINET

Eduardo Tamariz, After Long Conference With Dictator, Resigns Post of Agriculture.

MEXICO CITY, May 27.—The Minister of Agriculture and Colonization in Huerta's Cabinet, Eduardo Tamariz, a member of the Catholic party, resigned his post yesterday. Prior to presenting his resignation he had a long conference with the President. No official statement has been given out, but it is known that the resignation of the Minister was

Royal Garden Party at Toronto for Mediators; Diaz Not Invited

TORONTO, Ont., May 27.—The A. B. C. mediators and the United States and Mexican delegates arrived here today and immediately proceeded to the King Edward Hotel.

Late today the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, will give a 15-minute audience to the visitors. This is to be followed by a royal garden party in honor of the Governor-General of Canada, his royal highness, the Duke of Connaught, the Duchess and the Princess Patricia. Sir John Gihson, Lieutenant-Governor of the Dominion, is to be the host.

Gen. Felix Diaz, who is in Toronto, was not invited to the function. There were 2300 invitations issued and there have been 2300 acceptances.

The mediators will return tonight. En route they probably will have some informal discussions about the mediation problem. No regular conferences are contemplated.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, May 27.—With the land question satisfactorily adjusted, the mediators and delegates when they left here were concentrating their attention on the exact manner in which a new provisional government might be set up to succeed the present regime. That Gen. Huerta has formerly indicated his willingness to abide by the program thus far outlined here is no longer doubted.

The effort now is to arrange for a change of executives in a dignified manner. The mediation conference in all probability will not choose a provisional President. This will have to be done by the Mexico City Government itself.

As to Huerta's right to be a candidate again, there is no doubt that the three mediators are in complete sympathy with the Mexican delegates on this question. They hold that the very essence of democratic government is that the people may elect whom they please, and that dictation from foreign country as to who should or should not be a candidate at an election would be a gross infringement of Mexican sovereignty and that in the present case, such a declaration against Huerta would be tantamount to political prescription.

Huerta's Total Eclipse Wanted. Huerta's temporary elimination is already conditionally conceded. But his total eclipse is what President Wilson is striving for and every effort is being made to find a way to permit the American delegates to recede gracefully from the position which they are known to have taken, but which has never been formally announced.

The fact that the mediators are entirely in accord with the Mexican delegates is believed to have profoundly impressed Justice Lamar and Mr. Lehmann, and if this point is conceded, no mention of its ever having been discussed will be allowed to appear in the minutes of the conference.

Desiring to avoid the appearance of having had their provisional President chosen at an international conference, the Mexican delegates have evaded the point of suggesting to the mediators a list of names on whom the United States would look with favor if an interim executive were chosen from the list. The actual choice of an individual from the list of eligibles would be sanctioned, it is suggested by the Mexican Congress. There is reason to believe, however, that before any list is approved by the American Government, some tacit understanding from the Constitutionalists must come. It is assumed here that the Washington Government would be willing to assume the responsibility of trying to bring the Constitutionalists into

FOUR-DAY FIGHT AT GUAYMAS LOST BY THE FEDERALS

Rebels Drive Them Back to Trenches With Heavy Loss; 70 Killed Near La Passion.

By Associated Press. DOUGLAS, Ariz., May 27.—The Federals have lost a four days' battle before Guaymas and were forced to retire to their trenches, according to a telegram received here today from Gen. Alvarado, who led the Constitutional forces.

The fighting began May 22, when the Federals forced back a small force of rebels. Desultory fighting continued until the twenty-fourth, when heavy rebel reinforcements arrived and the Federals were forced to retire. On the night of the twenty-fifth the routing of the Federals was completed, they retreating to the trenches on the edge of the city.

According to the message, the Federal losses are described as very heavy, while the Constitutional losses were slight.

Seventy Federals, including a General and a Colonel, Killed.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 27.—Gen. Alvarado telegraphed here yesterday that his advance guard was attacked May 23, near La Passion by a force of Federals, who were defeated. Next day about 1000 Federal infantry and 250 cavalry with several machine guns drove the Constitutionalists back to Guaymas, where the main body reinforced them and finally defeated the Federals on the 25th.

The Federals lost 70 killed and more than twice as many wounded. Included in the killed is Gen. Rivero, one Colonel and several other officers. Gen. Santibanes was mortally wounded. The Constitutionalists lost two killed and one captured.

MAN LIES DEAD ON PARK BENCH 14 HOURS

Many Strollers Saw Him, but Believed He Was Sleeping; Left Note to Stepsister.

John Becker of 2222 Salisbury street, passing through Hyde Park at 7:15 a. m. Wednesday, found a man lying dead on a bench. He had seen the same man in the same position 14 hours before, but believed he was asleep. Persons who spent Wednesday evening in the park saw the man, but did not disturb him. The body was in the southwest corner of the park, near Twentieth and Salisbury streets.

The body was taken to the morgue, where it was identified as that of Fritz Mollmann, 45 years old, a teamster, with no home. In his pocket was a business card of a horseshoeing firm on North Broadway, on the back of which was written: "Pawm check in trunk. My new trousers also. You won't see me any more." At the bottom was written, "Mrs. Louis Kemp, 2315 North Twentieth street."

Mrs. Kemp told the police a man, in her absence Tuesday afternoon, had obtained a tea cup from her 7-year-old daughter, telling her he intended to drink carboic acid. This cup, with a three-ounce bottle half emptied of carboic acid, were found under the bench. The police learned Mrs. Minnie Kemp of 2314 Knapp avenue was Mollmann's stepsister. She held a small insurance policy upon his life.

INMATES EXPOSE REAL CONDITIONS IN PENITENTIARY AT JEFFERSON CITY

Depositions as to Conduct of Prison, Exposed by the Post-Dispatch, to Be Introduced in Trials of Suits Against Newspapers Opening Today at Fulton, Mo.

WARDEN McCUNG IS SUING FOR DAMAGES

He Asks $40,000 Against Post-Dispatch—First Suit to Go to Trial Is That Against the Star-Chronicle Publishing Co. for $60,000

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., May 27.—Convicts, guards, "square" men and others having knowledge of the shocking conditions in the Missouri Penitentiary which the Post-Dispatch exposed recently, have laid bare the details of inhumanity and cruelty practiced in that institution in depositions which will be introduced in civil suits which began here today.

The first of these suits, which were brought against newspapers, following disclosures made by the Post-Dispatch last autumn of the treatment of prisoners in the Jefferson City Penitentiary and conditions there, went to trial before Judge David H. Harris in the Callaway County Circuit Court.

The suit is that of Warden D. C. McCung against the Star-Chronicle Publishing Co., for $60,000 actual and $30,000 punitive damages, which the plaintiff elected to prosecute ahead of his suit against the Post-Dispatch.

It is in three counts, based on editorials published in The New St. Louis Star, Nov. 12 and 13, 1913, and a communication signed by George A. Ritter, published Nov. 25, 1913.

Suit Against Post-Dispatch.
A suit brought by McCung against the Post-Dispatch Publishing Co., for $30,000 actual and $30,000 punitive damages, on account of the publication of an editorial and a communication in the Post-Dispatch, is to be tried at the conclusion of the present case.

McCung asserts in his petitions that the publications caused the public to believe that he had violated his oath of office and had been guilty of unlawful conduct as Warden and had been guilty of barbarity and inhuman practices toward prisoners.

The defense is that the publications were true, that they concerned the conduct of a public institution by its officials, about which the public had a right to know, and that they were made in good faith for the purpose of bringing about a correction of conditions and made without malice.

Disclosures of Willis.
The disclosures by the Post-Dispatch followed the discovery that Steve Willis, a convict, had been confined in a dark cell for 23 days with his hands fastened to a ring above his head in an attempt to force him to tell where he obtained a bottle of whiskey which was found on him.

The punishment of Willis is set out at length in the answers to the petitions. The deposition of Willis and other evidence will be offered in justification of the publications sued on.

At the opening of court today Judge Harris announced that an order would be entered sustaining a demurrer in the suit of Deputy Warden Porter Glavin against the Star-Chronicle Publishing Co. Glavin sued for $20,000 on account of a reference to him in the New St. Louis Star. The court, in sustaining the demurrer, holds that the reference was not defamatory.

Base of McCung's Suit.
McCung's suit against the Post-Dispatch is for $30,000 actual and $30,000 punitive damages and is based upon an editorial printed in the Post-Dispatch Nov. 11, 1913, under the heading, "Remove Missouri's Reproach," and a communication printed on the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch Nov. 12, 1913, under the heading, "Inside View of the Missouri Penitentiary." He asks $10,000 actual and $10,000 punitive damages on each count.

The editorial, he alleges, charged that he had been guilty of violation of his oath of office and of such inhumanity and barbarity in the performance of his duties and of such inhumanity and barbarity that dozens of the prisoners under his charge had been whipped during the year prior to the publication by such awful blows administered upon the bare backs of prisoners that some of them became unconscious during the punishment, and that one prisoner had been so whipped in an unconscious condition.

The communication, he alleges, charges that one, Steve Willis, a prisoner, had been hanged in "the rings" by the direction and with the acquiescence and consent of the plaintiff and that plaintiff had declared that Willis would be kept hanging until he was killed unless he told where he had got whiskey and dope which it was claimed had been conveyed into the prison; also that the only request for advancement among the officials under McCung was that of the plaintiff, who had been promoted to the position of Warden through the influence of the plaintiff, and that the plaintiff was a man of low character and of such inhumanity and barbarity that he was a disgrace to the institution and to the state.

Millionaire, 62, and Divorce, 31, Whom He Is to Marry Soon

Mrs. MAY CALDWELL
MANWARING.

PLANT TOO ILL TO TESTIFY, BUT WELL ENOUGH TO MARRY

Engagements Announced After Statement That He Couldn't Appear in New Haven Inquiry.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 27.—Although Morton F. Plant is too ill to testify before the Interstate Commerce Commission, he is soon to make a second marriage.

Mrs. May Caldwell Manwaring, 31 years old, is to be the bride of the yachtsman, railroad magnate and philanthropist whose fortune is estimated at many millions and whose years are 62.

Manwaring thought that 10 days or two weeks was sufficient time for the marriage for the engagement announcement, but finally agreed with Plant's idea that because of so many reports concerning his appearance together in New York last week it was better to make formal announcement at once. Whether the honeymoon will be spent traveling in Europe or on Plant's yacht, Thelma, has not been decided.

Mrs. Manwaring got a divorce in this city April 21 from Selden Manwaring, manager of a restaurant in the Grand Central Terminal. She got the legal custody of her son, but the father may see him at reasonable times.

Manwaring, who is a member of the Connecticut Democratic State Central Committee, runs the Oswegatchie Hotel, near New London. Mrs. Manwaring and Plant met there several years ago.

Mrs. Manwaring was living, Mrs. Manwaring was often a caller at the Plant home and a member of many Plant automobile parties. Mrs. Plant died a year ago.

Plant's fortune is estimated at $30,000,000. He is a director, among others, of the New Haven, and it has been reported that he was too ill to testify in the Interstate Commerce Commission investigation of that road.

RECEPTION TO A MATRE

Matre is a native of Cincinnati. He came to St. Louis 10 years ago, to take up the duties of supreme secretary of the Catholic Knights of America, a position he has resigned to become president of a fire insurance company at Chicago. He retains his position as national secretary of the American Federation of Catholic Societies.

STATE G. O. P. ON HUNT FOR MONEY AND CANDIDATES

First Convention Session Discloses Organization Is $6000 to $7000 in Debt.

OFFICE TIMBER VERY SHY

National Committeemen Preparing Resolutions That Probably Will Attack New Tariff Law.

The problem of finance and candidates—how to get enough money to pay off an indebtedness of $6000 to $7000 and as much more for the fall campaign, and to get candidates to run for Congress, the State and county offices—were discussed by the Republican State Committee in session at the Marquette Hotel, Wednesday, before the opening of the State convention at the Armory at 2 p. m.

The only other work performed by the State Committee was to select Republican City Chairman John Schmitt for temporary chairman of the State convention, and William T. Findly for secretary. It elected W. G. Kitchen of Bloomfield secretary of the committee, to succeed Findly, who resigned to run for Congress in the Eleventh District.

The only proposition before the convention was the ratification of the Republican National Committee's plan to reduce the representation of Southern states in national conventions.

Four Candidates Have Filed.
A poll of the State Committee by districts was made to ascertain whether candidates for Congress had filed or would file, and what the prospects were of getting county tickets in the field. Only a few districts reported that candidates for Congress had already filed, but the committee members promised that they would have candidates, either by nomination at the State primary or by the Congressional Committee.

Relative to money matters, Chairman Babler said that the committee was now in debt between $6000 and $7000. The suit of his campaign for money to run for Congress in the Eleventh District, had brought promises of about $4000, he said, of which $2000 was now available. He reported that E. L. Morse of Excelsior Springs had raised $2000 among his friends.

The county organizations had been requested to help raise the necessary money, he said. Some of the counties had done well, but many of them had not reported, he said. The committee decided to leave the campaign for finances in the hands of Chairman Babler.

Many Standstills Present.
While the committee was in session, James E. Watson of Indiana, who was Taft's floor manager in the Republican National Convention at Chicago in 1912, was busy attending to business.

Niederhous, Otto F. Stifel, Dr. Max C. Starkloff and other party leaders preparing a set of resolutions to be adopted by the convention.

The resolutions probably will attack the Wilson administration's tariff law and charge that it has resulted in a general depression of business throughout the country and has thrown many persons out of employment.

The currency law just now going into effect is being attacked as a tariff law, and the general impression among the leaders that this law was an excellent piece of legislation, and that the Republicans could not make any political capital by attacking it.

Grouped Around the State Committee
While it was in session were many of the former standstill leaders in Missouri. Former Gov. Hadley was not present, but Rush Lako, who was a member of his appointees, came down from Kansas City to attend the convention.

Before the opening of the convention, the leaders said they expected that about 1000 delegates would be in attendance, and that all the counties would be represented.

BAUCH DISAPPEARANCE

Belief Held That American Mechanic Taken From Juarez Jail Was Executed.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Instructions to Consul Letcher at Juarez to furnish the State Department with additional information to complete the record so far as possible in the case of Gustave Bauch, the American railroad mechanic arrested by the Constitutional authorities at Juarez, Feb. 18 last, and who later disappeared, was the foundation of a report that the department is about to reopen the case and also the Benton case.

The purpose was explained to-day as being to close the Bauch case by procuring the few fragments of information still available regarding his disappearance from the Juarez prison. There is no known intention of making any fresh representations at this stage although without doubt, the Bauch case will figure in the final adjustment of claims to be preferred against the Mexican government, when peace is restored.

Bauch disappeared two days after his arrest and friends who visited the jail with food and bedding could get no trace of him. It is generally supposed he was executed.

JUDGE REFERS TO ENGLISH LORD AS BREWERY CADGER

Scathing Remark in Reference to Saye and Sele, Controller of King's Household, Made in Sentencing British Army Grafters.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, May 27.—Some scathing remarks were uttered today by Justice Darling in reference to Lord Saye and Sele. He is Controller of the King's Household and a direct descendant of the House of Lords entrusted with the enforcement by King John of the provisions of Magna Charta.

The incident occurred at the Old Bailey, where sentence was pronounced today on the nine British army officers and eight civilian employees of Lipton's, limited, who were charged with conspiracy to offer or accept bribes in connection with the allotment of army canteen contracts.

The Attorney-General, in closing the case for the prosecution, remarked that it was only fair to Sir Thomas Lipton to say that, so far as the prosecution knew, there was no document and no evidence which suggested in the slightest degree that anyone besides those who had been brought before the court should be prosecuted.

Six Months for Veterans.
Lieutenant-Colonel Whitaker of the Second Yorkshire Regiment, the highest in the rank of the prisoners, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Whitaker pleaded for mercy. The gray veteran, who has served in the British army for 38 years, broke down and said he had acted on the persuasion of Col. Flennes, now Lord Saye and Sele, who was then Lieutenant-Colonel of the Royal Scots Fusiliers.

Justice Darling, referring to Flennes' letter, which Whitaker declared had led him astray, said: "The letter shows sad decadence from the traditions of a great family. I myself, if I belonged to such a family, would starve rather than get my living by cadging for orders for beer."

Flennes' letter had invited Lieutenant-Colonel Whitaker to use his good offices in behalf of a firm of brewers. Two men placed $2500 each. By his position as Controller of the King's Household, Lord Saye and Sele is a member of the British Government.

John Canfield, general manager and director of Lipton's, limited, and Archibald Minto, formerly head of the military department of the same firm, were each fined $2500. The six lesser civilian defendants were fined $500 each.

The other military defendants were bound over to come up for judgment if called on.

Full Examination of Morgan Books Denied, Folk Hints
NEW YORK, May 27.—For more than an hour today Joseph W. Folk, counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission, conferred with Francis Lynde Stetson, counsel for J. P. Morgan, in the room of the latter's office to allow the commission to examine the firm's records relating to the New Haven Railroad.

A statement by Folk after the conference indicated that there had been some difference of opinion as to what papers and records should be gone into.

"We insist," said Folk, "that the examiners shall decide for themselves what books and papers of the firm relate to the New Haven. We also insist that these examiners shall be confined to books and papers handed them and said to be all that relate to the New Haven. In other words, the examination, to be worth anything, must be thorough. We want all the books and papers, or none at all."

The conference was held to plan for examination of the books of the Morgan firm and the personal papers and accounts of the late J. P. Morgan, so far as they relate to New Haven Railroad transactions.

Folk was accompanied by four men who were ready to begin on the books at once.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 27.—Directors of the New Haven Railroad will be placed on the witness stand next Wednesday, when the Interstate Commerce Commission resumes its investigation of the road's affairs.

This was announced by commission officials, who at the same time yesterday made public the names of five additional directors subpoenaed for the inquiry—William Skinner, Henry K. McHarg, Edward Milligan, Alexander Cochran and D. Newton Barney.

Present at the brief session yesterday, ready to go on the stand, were: Lewis Cass Ledyard and Laurence Milnot, former directors, and J. S. Elton, now a member of the board.

To Inspect Morgan Bonds.
The hearing was adjourned until special examiners of the commission might inspect the books of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and personal papers of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, as they relate to transactions of the New Haven Railroad. This development came as the result of a statement by J. Pierpont Morgan in New York yesterday to the effect that the records of his firm and his father's personal records still are intact and are available and ready for production before any proper tribunal. The commissioners have arranged to send four examiners to New York to inspect the records.

Examiner Francis H. McAdam of the commission who has been in New York for several days in an effort to ascertain the physical condition of William Rockefeller notified Chief Counsel Joseph W. Folk that Rockefeller's physician said his patient had had an other throat attack and could not be seen for a few days.

Ledyard Voluntary Witness.
At the brief session Ledyard declared he wanted to go on the stand and refute some of the testimony given by Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven. He was handed a letter addressed to him by Commissioner McChord, in which he was informed that the subpoena served on him had been withdrawn, but that, if he desired, he could appear voluntarily "waiving all immunity" by the testimony that he might give. Ledyard, although demurring at the words "waiving immunity," on the ground that they contained an implication, said he would accept the suggestion that he be a voluntary witness, as he wanted to "tell the whole truth."

Congratulations, Proud City of Saint Louis, on This, Your One Hundred and Fiftieth Birthday!

Tomorrow will begin the festivities known as "The Pageant and Masque of Saint Louis," when 7500 persons on one stage, in an imposing allegorical spectacle will typify interesting stories of the city's early history.

The Pageant and Masque of Saint Louis is probably the most stupendous production of modern days.

To Charlotte Rumbold, the woman who conceived the idea, and to Luther Ely Smith, whose indefatigable effort and self-sacrifice made possible its grand success, congratulations and sincere thanks!

Thomas Wood Stevens and Percy Mackaye, the authors of "The Pageant" and "Masque" respectively, are to be congratulated on the masterpieces which their talent and pen have given forth.

Scores of citizens who, for many months, have labored unceasingly, and the thousands who have so liberally contributed, are to be congratulated because they have made possible this glorious birthday celebration.

A century and a half ago, Pierre LaCade said:

"Look you, here is the plan of my city—for this shall come to be a city in good time. Here is the public square, the GRAND PLACE. Here is the street of the church, high up in the hill. Ah, you shall see it, my friends—the houses and the towers, the people going about their business, the boats with their cargoes along the river's edge, the steeples with the bells swinging on the Sabbath Day. Our city—and we shall name it SAINT LOUIS!"

And LaCade was not merely a dreamer, for in a short time, comparatively speaking, Saint Louis had come to be a city!

LaCade could not have planned more wisely had he known positively, that nearly a million people would inhabit the municipality which he founded and named.

Could this ancestor of some of our city's first families return to Saint Louis today, he would find happily employed in the store of

The Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co.

(Largest Store West of the Mississippi River) many times more people than were a part of his "city."

In 1764, Furs were the principal article of trade, and trinkets and beads were an important medium of exchange.

Today LaCade would find here a store which sells practically every known commodity for personal and household use—articles gathered from every nook and corner of the globe—and not only to the people of the City of Saint Louis, but also to people tributary to Saint Louis for hundreds of miles in every direction, does this store act in the capacity of distributor.

But to continue about Saint Louis—

This is to be one of the grandest birthday parties in the annals of cities.

The eyes of the world are on this city, and the hale good wishes of every section of this great United States are with St. Louis on the eve of its unique celebration.

How Pierre LaCade would gaze in wonderment, could he, on wings of fancy, fly back to his dear Saint Louis and see the grand city which he founded, in its holiday dress!

And are you not possessed of a desire to draw the curtains of time aside? Have you not a small bit of curiosity to peep into the future—to see the Saint Louis of a hundred and fifty years hence!

The progress of this city is in your—our hands.

Saint Louis is second to none in many respects.

Its Shaw's Garden, its Forest Park, its wonderful homes, its industries are known to the people of Europe as well as to those of America.

There is much to be accomplished, if we would progress, and this can be best done by a broad, generous spirit of civic pride and co-operation in which every individual should share.

Witness the "Pageant and Masque of Saint Louis."

Allow yourself to become enthused with the spirit of the occasion!

Be proud of the fact that you are a citizen of the city that Pierre LaCade and his faithful band founded a century and a half ago.

Let this grand birthday party, to begin tomorrow, and in which we all shall participate, be the signal for

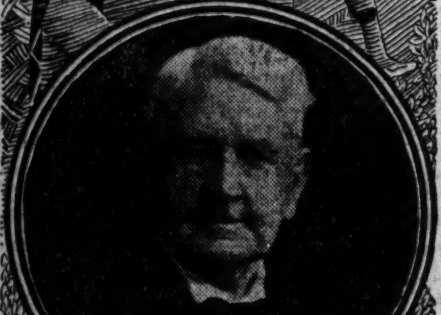

A New Era of Progress, Advancement and Prosperity

Rest assured,
The Saint Louis Beautiful—
The City of a Million People— is but a short step in the future.

Who can say what heights our fair city will attain a century and a half older, with every citizen a loyal soldier—ever ready to do his part—always with a good word for Saint Louis.

Resolve to do your share!

COUNCIL UPHOLDS VETO OF PAYNE TRACT BILL

Purchase of Land for Park Purposes Considered Unwise Because of Shaw Heirs' Litigation.

The Council sustained Mayor Kiel's veto of the $75,000 item in the annual city budget for the purchase of the Payne tract by a vote of 19 to 1, Tuesday. Councilman Julius Haller voted to override the veto after reading letters from officials of the Missouri Botanical Garden explaining an error made by Mayor Kiel in his veto message.

The letters explained that, under the will of Henry Shaw, it was provided that a 200-foot strip surrounding Tower Grove Park should be leased by the city for villa purposes, but if the Payne tract at the northeast corner of the park were acquired by the city, it should be come part of the 200-foot strip and not be isolated from the rest of the park.

The Mayor's message declared that in the face of adverse litigation by the Shaw heirs, pending in the Missouri Supreme Court, it would be unwise to acquire the Payne tract.

The Payne tract is controlled by options held by Joseph F. Murphy, a clerk in the Tax Assessor's office. Murphy obtained the passage of a bill at the last session of the Assembly directing the Mayor and Comptroller to purchase the tract for $100,000 or less. The Council and House set aside $75,000 as a first payment.

ROOSEVELT TELLS OF HIS NEW RIVER; VISITS PRESIDENT

White House, Geographical Society and Progressive Headquarters Receive Him.

DESCRIBES BRAZIL TRIP

Washington Visit Ends With Midnight Conference With His Party Leaders.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Col. Roosevelt, after greeting old friends, inspecting the trophies of his own African hunt and calling on President Wilson at the White House, last night told the National Geographic Society all about the 1000-mile river in Brazil which he "put on the map."

For almost two hours he detailed the story of his Brazilian explorations and then the politicians claimed him. Progressive leaders took him to the organization's headquarters where he listened to their plans and advised them how to proceed.

From the moment he alighted at the Union Station in the afternoon until he started back to New York at 1 o'clock in the morning he was cheered and applauded wherever he appeared.

He arrived at Convention Hall 10 minutes after the hour set for his much-heralded speech. An outpour appeared at the entrance and waved a handkerchief. The signal was understood by those used to the Rooseveltian methods. A great cheer arose as the Colonel bolted into the auditorium, followed by the four members of his party. The Colonel appeared to be pleased greatly by his reception, and as he looked about the audience he smiled broadly at several of his acquaintances.

Lacks His Old-Time Dash.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, sat close to the stage and the Colonel bowed deeply. Then he spoke. Chief Justice White sitting beside Major-General Leonard Wood. He shook his hands at them. But in spite of his efforts the Colonel looked tired, his hands were cold and covered with perspiration and his voice weak. He lacked his old-time vim and dash while speaking.

Many in the audience appeared to be surprised because he had lost much weight since his last appearance in Washington. His evening coat hung loosely about him. His smile appeared to be forced and he gave the impression of a man who was being sustained by will power, rather than by physical strength.

In his opening sentence he told his auditors that the lecture was to be dry. He made his talk from a big temporary stage, fitted with maps of South America, a big stereoscopic screen and a blackboard upon which was drawn a scale chart of a portion of the Amazon River, with its tributaries.

The Colonel was cheered loudly as he declared that the cartographers and geographers of all nations were wrong in their maps of the wilds of Brazil, wherein he found and traced "the Duvida River," as he now more familiarly known, the "River of Doubt."

Traces River on Blackboard.

Scientists, the Colonel declared, had attempted to dispute his discovery. Tracing on the blackboard map with a piece of chalk the river of his finding, he declared emphatically:

"I say we put it on the map and I mean what I say. No map has ever yet shown this river. Scientists have said we might have traversed the river Tapajose or the river Madeira, but the fact is that some of our party went down one river and some went down the other, while we went down a river between them, which no mapmaker ever saw. I can direct any man where to find this river, and rivers stay put, so that the discovery we have made may be verified."

The Colonel described in detail the hardships of his trip into the Brazilian wilds and particularly the hardships endured in navigating the river of doubt. In the upper part of the river, he said, the rapids were so severe that it required 42 days for the party to traverse one degree from 11:46 south to 10:45 south. During that hazardous trip they lost nearly all their food and belongings.

Monkeys Used for Food.

"We were forced to eat monkeys to keep out our rations," declared the Colonel. "Don't shudder, for I assure you that after this experience you might leave me in the monkey house without making any mistake."

There were many Indians in the upper reaches of the Duvida, the Colonel said. "They were seemingly very timid and in some cases hostile," he added. "I believe they were hostile only because they were timid, but it is almost as unpleasant to be shot by a man because he is afraid of you as if he killed you because he disliked you."

The Colonel said he had not gone to South America to discover rivers, but on a purely zoological mission, but that Dr. Muller, Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs, had inspired him to seek out the now famous "River of Doubt."

"Dr. Muller told me," Roosevelt declared, "that as a result of the work of the Brazilian Telegraph Commission in Western Brazil, all the maps in existence of that part of the country would have to be changed."

"Some of these maps," the Colonel continued with a twinkle, "were drawn by fellows of the Royal Geographical Society and they are all wrong, too. Muller showed us that the whole region would have to be remapped. He said the Telegraph Commission has discovered the sources of two new rivers, but they knew not where they went. One of these was the 'River of Doubt,' and Dr. Muller asked me why I didn't investigate it. I told him, 'By George, that's what I would like to do.'"

Aided by Brazilian Work.

Asserting that he made up his mind to undertake the task, the Colonel continued:

"Everything we did was based on what

Now Who Doubts My River? Asks Roosevelt

NEW YORK, May 27.—If anybody doubts the existence of that river now, his sincerity is open to question.

This was the comment of Col. Theodore Roosevelt early today on his return here from Washington on the lecture he delivered there last night before the National Geographic Society in which he officially announced the discovery of a heretofore unknown river in Brazil.

Col. Roosevelt planned to remain in town today, spending some time at his editorial offices and to return to his home in Oyster Bay late in the day.

The Telegraphic Commission of Brazil, under Col. Rondon, had done during the past seven years. All we did was to cap the pyramid of which they laid broad and firm, the foundations."

Col. Roosevelt urged that the Geographic Society recognize in some way the work of Col. Rondon and the Telegraphic Commission, adding, "they have had not too much recognition at home in Brazil."

He presented a letter which he wrote to Dr. Muller after he left the jungle, describing the trip.

At the close of his statement, Col. Roosevelt offered to answer any questions which anyone in the audience might ask. After a pause, during which no questions were propounded, he said: "No questions are asked me to my face."

PRESIDENT VERY GLAD TO SEE T. R.

Colonel Spends Half an Hour at White House, Exchanging Stories and Sipping Lemonade.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Former President Roosevelt's call on President Wilson caused great interest here. The President and his predecessor spent more than half an hour together and talked of most everything except politics. A good deal of the time was spent telling stories. Col. Roosevelt went to the White House dressed in a gray suit and a white felt hat. He had intended to go to his hotel and don more formal attire, but there was so much else to do that he hadn't the time.

When the Colonel arrived at the executive mansion, he warmly greeted "Jimmy" Sloan, a secret service man, and other White House attaches, who served during his administrations.

"I'm very glad to see you," said the President as he shook hands with Roosevelt. They had met before and, therefore, no introductions were necessary. Miss Miller Hamner, social secretary at the White House, who occupied a similar position during the Roosevelt administrations, and Secretary Tamm, were present. After the exchange of greetings the President led the way to the south porch of the White House where lemonade was served by Miss Hagner and the two men sat down for a long talk.

Speaking of travel, books and telling stories, the two men seemed to enjoy their meeting greatly. The Colonel himself mentioned the "River of Doubt," which he discovered in Brazil and joked over the controversy about it.

The President asked particularly that the Colonel convey congratulations to Kermit Roosevelt, who is to be married next month in Madrid. Then they shook hands and Col. Roosevelt walked quickly to his automobile.

On his arrival in Washington Col. Roosevelt went first to the Smithsonian institution. It was his first glimpse of the game he shot in Africa since it had been mounted.

From the museum Col. Roosevelt went to the home of Senator Lodge for a talk with the Senator and the British,

French and Spanish Ambassadors. Then he attended a dinner given by President Wilson at the National Geographic Society. The lecture came next, with the conference with Progressive Congressmen the last thing on the Gilbert H. Grosvenor of the National Geographic Society. "Just Luck" said a tobacco expert in discussing how Bondy & Lederer hit upon the "PRESADO" BLEND—that wonderful knack of blending filler, binder and wrapper tobaccos to produce the TOM KEENE.

Perhaps it was—"just luck." But perhaps the manufacturers deserve some credit, too, for their years of patient experimenting; especially for never pushing ahead beyond the supply of these selected tobaccos needed to maintain the superiority of this "Presado" blend. But anyway—luck or no luck—here's the result:

REGISTRATION DAY FOR ELECTION ON CHARTER IS JUNE 16

House Passes Bill for Vote on Draft June 30 and Mayor
Will Sign It Friday.

WIDE CAMPAIGN PLANNED

Registration Will Save Vote for Thousands Who Have Moved Since 1913.

Plans for a city-wide campaign for the proposed new charter were made Wednesday by the Joint Charter Conference and other civic and business organizations, following the passage by the House of Delegates Tuesday night of the bill providing for a special charter election June 30.

A campaign committee to arrange for public speaking in every ward and precinct; to distribute copies of the charter and conduct an educational campaign, will be appointed by Frank P. Crunden, chairman of the conference. It is likely that a central headquarters will be opened by the Campaign Committee.

The charter election bill was passed by unanimous vote of the House of Delegates. As the charter previously had passed the bill, it will become effective as soon as it is signed by President Lazarus of the Council, Speaker Gassolo of the House of Delegates and Mayor Kiel. Mayor Kiel has made arrangements to sign the bill Friday, after Lazarus and Gassolo have signed it.

June 16 is Registration Day. June 16 has been fixed as registration day for the charter election. The opening of the registration books in each voting precinct throughout the city will give an opportunity to register to all electors who have moved since they last registered, and to persons who have become otherwise qualified to vote since the registration in February, 1912.

This registration will qualify voters for voting at both the charter and the state primary elections. But for this, it is estimated that from 30,000 to 50,000 voters who have moved since they last registered would have lost the right to vote.

Mayor Working for Charter. An important part of the work of the Charter Campaign Committee will be to get supporters of the new charter to register. Just what aid the Charter Committee will get from the political organizations has not been ascertained. Some members of the Republican organization will support the charter, but the attitude of the Democratic members has not been publicly revealed.

Mayor Kiel has declared that he will do everything he can to pass the new charter.

The Mayor's personal and political friends in the Republican organization have assured him they will support the charter. The only organized opposition that has developed has come from a faction of the Central Trades and Labor Union dominated by what is known as the McDonough-Shanessy combination, and from the People's League, comprised of Charles L. Delbridge, Sheridan Webster and others.

Manager Says 43 Chippers Quit
Because of Unfamiliarity With Automatic Hammers.

R. A. Bull, manager of production of the Commonwealth Steel Co. at Granite City, Ill., told a reporter Wednesday that 43 chippers who quit work in the Granite City plant last Saturday did not go out on a strike because of dissatisfaction with their pay.

He said the men had been assigned to work at automatic hammers and they objected to this kind of work. Their objection, he said, was mainly due to their unfamiliarity with the hammer. He said that the loss of the chippers would not cripple the plant.

Because of lack of orders the Commonwealth plant has been working its force of employees on one-third time for several months. In this way, he said, the old employees have a chance to earn some money. The payroll last Saturday amounted to $88,000. Normally it is $125,000 a week.

Edward T. Reese, 31 years old, of 3218 North Broadway, was taken to the city hospital Wednesday morning after an altercation with Mrs. Martha J. Penner, 21, of 4011 North Eleventh street.

Reese was suffering from many cuts and bruises on his face. Mrs. Penner was locked up at the Angelica Street Station. She suffered a few scratches on her face.

The police said that Mrs. Penner and Reese quarreled because Reese had struck her 5-year-old son, Otto, with a pair of pliers. Mrs. Penner was on her way to market at the time and had a large tin bucket in her hand. The police reported she struck Reese in the face six times with the bucket.

TOMORROW

Today you may secure the 29 volumes, and with them a bookcase, if you desire it, for a first payment of only $5.00, the purchase to be completed in 12, 8 or 4 months, if you do not wish to pay cash in full. Or, you may pay as little as little $5.00 per month.

After tomorrow the same book will cost $29.00 more (cloth); $36.50 more (Full Sheepskin); $45 more (Full Limp Suede) and $50 more (Full Morocco.)

The sale of the 11th Edition since the editors and their staff of 1500 contributors completed the task of making it has reached the total of more than $13,000,000, but if the volumes had been brought out one at a time and sold at the regular price charged for previous new editions, bookbuyers collectively would have had to pay for exactly the same books more than $20,000,000.

How much will be saved in the course of today and tomorrow?

After tomorrow the price will be from $29 to $50 more, and the book will be manufactured in much smaller lots, and therefore at a higher manufacturing cost. fore at a higher manufacturing cost. may be, if you buy the work in the course of today or tomorrow, instead of later on.

Will you be one of those who buy the great book cheaply by buying it promptly? That is for you to decide. Perhaps you already know what the Encyclopaedia Britannica is; perhaps you have seen copies in the houses of your friends. If that is the case, all that you have to do is to sign the order form that is printed on this page.

The success of the low-price offer has exceeded the expectations which were based upon the reception given to the new 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica when it appeared.

Thousands of people who inquired about the book during the past two years, but arrived at no decision about the matter, are sending in their subscriptions this week.

Our office is overwhelmed by the orders which each mail brings. Receipts are being sent out as rapidly as possible, but if you send your subscription this morning and fail to receive an acknowledgement by return mail, you will find that there will not in any case be a delay of more than one or two days, and no check or money order is collected until a receipt for it has been sent.

DEMAND MADE THAT BAIRD RULE ON BUSCH ROAD

Delegate McCarthy's Resolution Would Force Opinion as to Whether Franchise Is Forfeited.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

It Also Directs Counselor to Begin Action to Enforce City's Rights.

An attempt to reopen the inquiry into alleged violations of its franchise by the Manufacturers' Railway (Busch road), which pledged a forfeiture of its main line track and $25,000 cash if a ferry system and belt line in Illinois were not in operation by April, 1910, was postponed until Friday in the House of Delegates when Delegate McCarthy offered a resolution Tuesday night.

The McCarthy resolution was referred to the Legislation Committee, of which he is chairman, when Delegate Brokaw asked time to familiarize himself with the facts in the case.

The resolution calls upon City Counselor Baird to give an opinion, not later than June 15, as to whether the city may claim the forfeiture of the Busch road tracks, and directs him to institute proper legal proceedings to enforce the city's rights under the franchise or franchises of the company.

Asked for Opinion Last Year. Baird was asked for a similar opinion by the City Council last September and failed to deliver it. Councilman Fletcher, author of the resolution, reported to the Council several times that Baird pleaded a press of other business that made it impossible to give the opinion, but the Council three times voted resolutions to ask the City Counselor for an immediate reply to the resolution.

A public hearing was conducted Tuesday by the House Public Improvements Committee on a bill of the Busch road, asking the vacation of Third street without compensation to permit the erection of a depot and warehouse at Broadway and Miller streets.

Many residents and owners of property in the vicinity opposed the bill, while spokesmen for several industries situated on the tracks of the Busch road spoke for the measure and said it would be a stimulus to South St. Louis business to close the street.

The Busch road management has modified its original bill after several widows brought about its defeat on the ground that it would damage their homes to cut off egress and extend railroad tracks and freight depots into the vicinity. The road has offered to open a 20-foot passage for vehicle traffic between Third street and Broadway along the north side of the proposed depot, to afford an outlet for traffic.

Chairman Souley of the Public Improvements Committee said, after the hearing, that no report would be made in the near future. President George F. Moore of the Busch road, told the committee that if Third street is not closed his company will be forced to seek an injunction against the Missouri Public Service Commission to restrain enforcement of its order against the creation of a grade crossing at Third street. The commission's ruling against the creation of any more grade crossings in St. Louis makes it necessary for the Busch road to have the public street vacated or depress its tracks beneath the street.

NEGRO SHOT IN SALOON; HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Boarder in Bar Proprietor's Apartments Fires When Intruder Throws Whiskey Bottle.

James Baird, a negro, was shot at 3:30 a. m., Wednesday, in the saloon of Charles Carmichael, 1814 Bond avenue, East St. Louis, by Martin Dawson, who lives in Carmichael's boarding house over the saloon. He had gone downstairs with Carmichael to investigate a noise in the saloon.

Dawson was in the lead as they went down the steps. He saw two negroes in the saloon and commanded them to hold up their hands. One of the negroes threw a quart bottle of whiskey at him and Dawson fired.

One of the negroes fell and the other ran out the door. Dawson pursued him and fired several shots, but he escaped. The wounded man was turned over to the police on an attempted robbery charge. His wound is not serious.

Before going to the saloon the negroes had been in the sleeping rooms and had taken a suit of clothes, containing $7, belonging to Carmichael. At 8 a. m. a negro entered a saloon at Twenty-sixth street and Tudor avenue, and told the bartender that he had been shot in the back in a saloon and that he wanted to see a doctor. A policeman was called and took him to the station. He was identified by Carmichael as the second negro. He said his name was Edward Thomas.

When you ask your dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, don't let him give you any other. Unscrupulous merchants sometimes take advantage of the nation-wide popularity of

RUNAWAY BICYCLE HURTS DETECTIVE AND ITS RIDER

Policeman Prevents It Running
Into Car and He and Boy Are Knocked Unconscious.

In stopping a runaway bicycle to save

Carl Thompson, 14 years old, from colliding with a street car, Thomas J. Churchill, a city detective, was knocked unconscious at 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Churchill and Detective Thomas J. Scheller, crossing Eighteenth street at Locust street, saw, riding down the steep grade from Seventeenth street, a boy on a bicycle. He had lost control of the machine and his feet had been thrown from the pedals. A northbound Eighteenth street car was just starting across Locust street, and it appeared certain that he would run into the car. The detectives sprang into the path of the bicycle to seize the handle bars on either side. Churchill was struck in the groin by the machine. The boy was hurled from his seat and his head hit that of the detective. Both fell insens-ble and were treated at the dispensary for scalp wounds.

Churchill afterwards reported to Chief Aldender and insisted upon going on duty, but was told to go home. Carl is the son of Mrs. Ida Thompson of 230 Adams street and is a messenger for the Postal Telegraph Co.

HIGH WAGE SCALES DRIVING INDUSTRY ON REEF, SAYS HILL

Railroad Magnate Declares U. S.
Is Trending Toward Condition
Like That in Britain.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—James J. Hill, discussing "The Future of Our Foreign Trade," in a paper read at the National Foreign Trade Convention here today, intimated that the United States might be in danger of running into such a widespread industrial distress as England now finds itself "from attempting to hold markets against competitors while maintaining a wage scale that does not permit her to meet their prices and does not offer to capital an inducement into new fields of development."

He compared the per capita value of foreign trade of the United States, which is $41, to that of Germany, which is $67, and that of the United Kingdom, which is $125. He said it was a short-sighted optimism that has concentrated attention for many years on the increase of our exports and manufactured products. Germany was constantly capturing English markets because of the inability of the English manufacturer to change his working conditions in conformity to general changes that have taken place. The United States was following England's example.

"The power of the English trades unions became practically arbitrary in fixing wages, hours and general working conditions," he said. "Germany found that, with a more advantageous wage scale, she could go into the world's markets and compete at prices which England could not meet. Hence the enormous growth of German exports."

"Once a competition which the United States itself cannot meet in many lines, and which it could not meet at all did not immine and accessible natural resources, and in certain lines of manufacture, the use of highly skilled labor and highly complicated machinery which cheaper labor is not competent to handle, give us a temporary advantage. "But that advantage, like every other exceptional local condition in the world trade, tends to be equalized and disappears."

Hill pictured the industrial distress in England and said it would seem that rational conduct might save the day, "but the burden placed by unwise restricted legislation and unnecessary taxation upon business in the United States are producing their natural effects here also. Just such mistakes as Great Britain has made and is making may confront the American workingman with a lost job and empty cupboard and no younger and more promising land to which he may emigrate."

"Losing gradually the advantages that our position and resources have given us up to a recent date nothing but deeper wisdom and a keener sense of justice toward all factors that must unite to create national prosperity can keep up at the front in the race with other nations or even insure us against disappointment, disorder and economic distress at home."

CONAN DOYLE IN GOTHAM; SEES END OF MILITANTS

Author Says British Government Is About to Suppress the Suffragettes.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Sir Conan Doyle, the British novelist, accompanied by Lady Doyle, arrived at New York today on the White Star liner Olympic.

Conan Doyle said England had stood all it could from the militant suffragettes, and he anticipated "a wholesale lynching."

"The English Government," he said, "follows public opinion and thus far public opinion has not demanded the entire suppression of the suffragettes. But it is on the point of doing so, and when the English mob is thoroughly aroused, it is not a respecter of sex."

This is Doyle's first visit to this country in 20 years.

When Sir Arthur was informed that no general uprising had followed the recent passage of the home rule bill, he said:

"That is splendid. So far, so good. But the question is, how long will it last? I do not believe there will be sporadic uprisings or small outbreaks, but if anything further does happen, it will be serious. I tell you those men are not 'bluffing,' as you say. It will be so serious as to amount practically to civil war, or it will be nothing at all. The men of Ulster will never give in to the idea of an Irish Parliament."

DOCTOR ON TRIAL FOR KILLING MAN WHO MET WIFE

Prosecutor Demands First-Degree Murder Conviction of St. Joseph Physician.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 27.—"The defendant is guilty of murder in the first degree," declared Floyd E. Jacobs, prosecuting attorney, in his opening statement to the jury today in the trial of Dr. W. T. Elam of St. Joseph, Mo., charged with the murder of W. Putnam Cramer of Chicago. Jacobs said the State would prove Dr. Elam had purchased a revolver the morning of the shooting, exchanging an old one because the latter would not work.

The State would prove, he said, that Cramer was sitting in a chair, unprepared to defend himself, when he was shot. Dr. Elam offered to plead guilty and accept a sentence immediately after the shooting, but his proposal was not accepted, the prosecutor said.

"The defense will not be the 'unwritten law,' but the written law," declared A. W. Brewster, attorney for Dr. Elam. "We will show that Dr. Elam was shot in self-defense and acted in accordance with the law that gives any man the right to protect his home."

Brewster said that after Dr. Elam had overheard a telephone conversation in which Mrs. Elam made an engagement to meet Cramer at Kansas City, he had obtained admissions from his wife that she had spent one evening with Cramer in a Kansas City cafe and that Cramer on that occasion had caressed her. She also told her husband of meeting Cramer in St. Louis in May, 1913, the attorney declared.

Brewster said the defense would show that Cramer possessed great physical strength and that when Dr. Elam met him in the hotel lobby the day of the shooting, Cramer insisted on taking the physician to his room. When they entered, Brewster declared, Cramer locked the door and placed the key in his pocket.

Brewster maintained that Dr. Elam had expected to talk with Cramer in the hotel lobby in the presence of witnesses and carried a revolver only for protection.

"They keep telling me to make you try Sanatogen"

AND they are insistent—those good friends of yours who tell you time after time to "try Sanatogen."

But it is insistence born of gratitude for the aid that Sanatogen has given them. And when at last you do try Sanatogen, you will no longer wonder at their certainty that Sanatogen can help you.

Times without number, physicians have praised its gentle, upbuilding influence upon a run-down system. No less than 19,000 of them have even written us—sincere, enthusiastic letters, to tell how they have seen Sanatogen restore and reconstruct, enrich the blood-stream and by regenerating digestion and recalling deeper, more restful slumber, uplift and infuse into the whole system a new vigor, a new joy in life.

And when you recall the deep gratitude with which Sir Gilbert Parker, John Burroughs, Col. Water-son and scores of today's foremost thinkers have written to tell what Sanatogen has done for them—frankly, now, can you deny yourself, even for one day longer, such sure and kindly help?

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere in three sizes, from $1.00 up.

PREDICTS NEW PARTY LINEUP OF DEMOCRATS

Illinois Senatorial Candidate Believes Liberal Element Can Draw From all Political Bodies.

HARRISBURG, Ill., May 27.—Carl Vrooman, candidate for United States Senator, today told Democrats of St. Louis County that he believes a new party lineup is close at hand and that the liberal wing of the Democratic party is in a position to make itself the foundation of a great liberal Democratic party that would draw to itself all the liberals of all existing parties.

"Soon," said Vrooman, "there will be in this country a great liberal Democratic party and a reactionary or conservative party. The Democratic party now has the opportunity to become the political instrument of militant liberalism."

If, however, it fails to take advantage of this opportunity, the liberal Democratic movement will not, therefore, be thwarted. It will merely find another channel through which to do its work of political and social regeneration."

At Benton, last night, the Bloomingdale party was joined by State Senator D. T. Woodward, a leader among Franklin County Progressive Democrats and one of the organizers of the Wilson-Bryan League. He found the Franklin County Democrats almost a unit for the best down-State man to beat Sullivan.

From Benton the Vrooman party this morning went to Galatia and thence to Harrisburg via El Dorado. Tomorrow Vrooman will be in Grayville. He has been summoned by the Grayville Progressive Democrats as a counter attraction to Roger Sullivan at the horse show there.

ECONOMICAL LIGHT WEIGHT SIX
$1575

Studebaker SIX
tire cost is one-third to one-fifth the tire cost of heavier "Sixes".

The Studebaker SIX runs farther on a gallon of gasoline than other "Sixes".

It runs several hundred miles farther on a quart of oil.

It is the one economical "Six" because it is light-weighting less than 3000 pounds—and perfectly balanced.

And these qualities, in turn, go back to Studebaker special steel and Studebaker intensive manufacturing methods.

To the employment of costly machinery and costly materials that no car built in lesser volume—even if sold at the highest price—can afford.

These methods put value into the Studebaker SIX beyond the value of any other car at any price.

They make it the first—and the only—really economical "Six."

Send for the Studebaker Proof Book, describing Studebaker manufacturing methods.

Grape Juice Recommended for a Fine Summer Drink.

It is a fact well known from coast to coast now that grape juice has become a national drink, especially in summer time. With the pure juice of the grape as it is prepared by the Armour & Company almost any kind of a cooling and refreshing drink may be obtained. There are grape juice highballs that are without liquor, but are refreshing every way, just as there are the mint mixed juleps that are just as pleasing to the taste as the original product. The grape juice drinks are designed for the children as well as the parents. There is a grape juice punch, too, that is highly recommended.

H. W. BAKER LEFT NO WILL

AURORA, Ill., May 27.—The estate of the late Henry W. Baker, nephew of Mrs. John W. Gates, who died in Colorado Springs recently, was scheduled for distribution in the Probate Court here today. The estate was valued at $105,000, all but $500 of which was personal property, and in the absence of a will, it was said, will go to the widow.

The will of John W. Gates provided $250,000 for Baker on condition of his finishing a college course. His health prevented his completing his education. It was said Mrs. Gates gave Baker $250,000 while he was ill and attempting to finish his education.

Deputy Commodore Selig, WASHINGTON, May 27.—Charles R. Dilbeck, master at arms, third class, on the South Carolina, will receive a letter of commendation from Secretary Daniels for gallantry in jumping overboard and rescuing a shipmate in Haiti. The sailor had jumped overboard.

It is especially encouraging that many of last season's league members are finding early occasion to report for active duty during the summer now just beginning. Their loyal zeal promises the very best results in organized effort and achievement.

It proves that the Pure Milk League exerts a potent influence for sustained good work in the great movement to save the little ones of the poor from sickness and death due to impure milk in the hot summer time.

The League membership last summer reached a total of 2077. It is hoped that this summer's enlistment will total at least 5000. The need of help to save the babies is greater than ever before. The field to be covered is wider. The fullest life-saving service possible to human agencies will be extended if the money necessary to pay the actual working cost of such service is forthcoming.

Join the League now and help to save the tenement babies!

The Post-Dispatch Weather Bird on the League button is in the pink of condition for a marathon test of its flying powers.

It hopes to wing its flight into thousands of St. Louis homes, the homes of at least 5000 League members for the summer of 1914.

Its vivid little red coat is the stimulating symbol sent far and wide for the rallying of the League clans.

And the Weather Bird is tremendously enthusiastic for League victory.

Already it is tuning up for a splendid song of triumph.

The Weather Bird's slogan is the League's slogan: "Save the babies!"

HOME RULE HIGHBALL OUT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 27.—The "Home Rule Highball" is a drink invented by an Irish bartender at the Schenley House and the fact that it typifies the truce which has been brought about between England and Ireland has made it immensely popular. The drink is an ordinary highball, to which is added a slice of orange, representing the Orangemen and a sprig of mint to signify the Home Rulers.

Love Finds a Way

By Opie Read.

It was the dread of old Mrs. Tolliver, possessed of millions, that her son might not marry to suit her. That he might not marry to suit himself and might thereby be made miserable for life did not appeal to her. Once in a while she discovered some scarecrow of society or some freckle-faced obscure life whom she fancied would make John a good wife, and the young man, mortally afraid of offending her, was forced to beg piteously. But now was approaching the time when she knew that he ought to "settle his emotions," as she termed it. "Impossible," she would say, "a step could not be taken longer to get off. The old lady owned railroad stock, sugar stock, oil stock—great blocks of buildings and large holdings in several railroads, but she was niggardly almost to the degree of shabbiness. Sometimes she would threaten John with a nephew, to whom she vowed she would leave her possessions, and the young fellow was kept in a constant state of fear.

"Now if you think you are going to marry one of those high-fliers," she said one day, "you are wrong. Oh, it would be just the thing for one of the butterflies to stick her feelers into the honey I have gathered, but I won't have it. What was I when your father married me—a butterfly? Well, I reckon not. I worked in a mill, do you understand that? In a cotton mill, and I did my work so well that the owner of the mill married me. Suppose he had married one of those gaudy things. What would have been the result? She would have ruined him, that's all. But as it was, I helped him to make more. And now, once for all, let me say that you are going to marry to suit me."

John's mother picked out a skinny creature who had done dairy work on a farm, and sent John to see her. He found her loving and ungrammatical. "La, me," she said, "I do adore your mother." Shortly afterward she said "land-sakes" and something about "do tell." With some anxiety the old lady waited for John's report.

Among other things he told her he had invested her savings in a diamond pin. And that settled it. "A diamond pin!" shouted the old lady. "Thought that she would catch you with a glitter, did she? Well, we will show her about that." And that was the end of the skinny girl.

The old lady had a trying time with her servants. She kept but one, living as she did in a small flat. A pound of coffee was expected to last just so long, and if it fell short the girl went. One week she tried three.

Three weeks passed and John had heard no word spoken against the new girl. She was called Mollie, a very befitting name, the old lady declared. She was attentive and economical. A pound of coffee went far beyond the limit. She was neat and in view of her economy the old lady was almost willing to accept her, but she was handsome. One morning at breakfast the old lady said: "My son, I have been thinking again."

"About my taking a wife?" asked John, looking anxiously at her.

"The same," she replied, tightening her lips.

"I was in hopes that you had forgotten it, everything has been going so well of late."

"You may well say that everything has been going well. And why?" She nodded toward the kitchen. "On account of that girl. My son, I want to tell you that she is a treasure."

"I am quite willing to agree to that, mother."

"And I was thinking," the old lady went on—"now don't look scared. I was thinking that she would make any man a good wife."

"But, mother, she is a servant."

"Servant indeed, and what was I when your father married me? This girl has been well brought up—she is a lady, and the most saving creature I ever saw."

"But perhaps she might not learn to love me."

"My son, a saving woman can learn to love anybody. I will speak to her. Oh, there's no use to make any bones about it. We will speak to her as well as to you, Mollie," she called.

The girl came into the dining room. "Did you call me, madame?"

"Yes, Mollie, I called you. Ahem, Mollie, I am a peculiar woman."

"I don't think so, madame."

"Well, be that as it may, I am. And now don't you be surprised at what I am going to say. For a long time I have desired to see my son married, but I can find no one that suits me. Mollie, you suit me. Will you consent to be his wife?"

She started, but recovered herself instantly. "Perhaps the young man might not find it me."

"Never mind that. Will you marry him? He has nothing to say."

"But I could wish that he had something to say, madame. Yes, I will marry him."

John groaned.

"And I believe I will make him a good wife. Madame, when do you desire that ceremony should take place?"

"At once, without any pow-wow."

"But, madame, he has said nothing."

"And it is not necessary that he should," replied the old lady.

"Just as you say, madame. And now let me see. As the ceremony is to be private, I think that the dress I wore to church last Sunday will be suitable—still, if you desire."

"You are a gem," the old lady broke in. "You are the girl of the affair. I will leave you to talk over a few of the minor details with him."

The old lady went out, and John and Mollie, hugging each other, smothered their laughter. "Oh, if she only knew that I met you at a watering place last summer!"

"Hush," she might hear you. But some day I am going to tell her that I loved you when I thought that you were poor."

"You are an angel."

"At all events, I am economical," she laughed.

It Certainly Does in John's Case, Though John Has to Fool His Mother First to Win Mollie.

"You may well say that everything has been going well. And why?" She nodded toward the kitchen. "On account of that girl. My son, I want to tell you that she is a treasure."

"I am quite willing to agree to that, mother."

"And I was thinking," the old lady went on—"now don't look scared. I was thinking that she would make any man a good wife."

"But, mother, she is a servant."

"Servant indeed, and what was I when your father married me? This girl has been well brought up—she is a lady, and the most saving creature I ever saw."

"But perhaps she might not learn to love me."

"My son, a saving woman can learn to love anybody. I will speak to her. Oh, there's no use to make any bones about it. We will speak to her as well as to you, Mollie," she called.

The girl came into the dining room. "Did you call me, madame?"

"Yes, Mollie, I called you. Ahem, Mollie, I am a peculiar woman."

"I don't think so, madame."

"Well, be that as it may, I am. And now don't you be surprised at what I am going to say. For a long time I have desired to see my son married, but I can find no one that suits me. Mollie, you suit me. Will you consent to be his wife?"

She started, but recovered herself instantly. "Perhaps the young man might not find it me."

"Never mind that. Will you marry him? He has nothing to say."

"But I could wish that he had something to say, madame. Yes, I will marry him."

John groaned.

"And I believe I will make him a good wife. Madame, when do you desire that ceremony should take place?"

"At once, without any pow-wow."

"But, madame, he has said nothing."

"And it is not necessary that he should," replied the old lady.

"Just as you say, madame. And now let me see. As the ceremony is to be private, I think that the dress I wore to church last Sunday will be suitable—still, if you desire."

"You are a gem," the old lady broke in. "You are the girl of the affair. I will leave you to talk over a few of the minor details with him."

The old lady went out, and John and Mollie, hugging each other, smothered their laughter. "Oh, if she only knew that I met you at a watering place last summer!"

"Hush," she might hear you. But some day I am going to tell her that I loved you when I thought that you were poor."

"You are an angel."

"At all events, I am economical," she laughed.

John's mother picked out a skinny creature who had done dairy work on a farm, and sent John to see her. He found her loving and ungrammatical. "La, me," she said, "I do adore your mother." Shortly afterward she said "land-sakes" and something about "do tell." With some anxiety the old lady waited for John's report.

Among other things he told her he had invested her savings in a diamond pin. And that settled it. "A diamond pin!" shouted the old lady. "Thought that she would catch you with a glitter, did she? Well, we will show her about that." And that was the end of the skinny girl.

The old lady had a trying time with her servants. She kept but one, living as she did in a small flat. A pound of coffee was expected to last just so long, and if it fell short the girl went. One week she tried three.

Three weeks passed and John had heard no word spoken against the new girl. She was called Mollie, a very befitting name, the old lady declared. She was attentive and economical. A pound of coffee went far beyond the limit. She was neat and in view of her economy the old lady was almost willing to accept her, but she was handsome. One morning at breakfast the old lady said: "My son, I have been thinking again."

"About my taking a wife?" asked John, looking anxiously at her.

"The same," she replied, tightening her lips.

"I was in hopes that you had forgotten it, everything has been going so well of late."

"You may well say that everything has been going well. And why?" She nodded toward the kitchen. "On account of that girl. My son, I want to tell you that she is a treasure."

Civilization's Burden

THERE is no mistaking the thrill of relief that possesses us all whenever there is a probability of war. Human beings, under the constant exhortation of misadvised uplifters, have tried to dress up and be polite, to look and be civilized. We have developed a resounding vocabulary and an inspiring vernacular upon the subject, and have talked about civilization as a great ideal. We have tried to make out, especially on Sundays, that it is a state to which we are constitutionally suited. But it isn't. The burden of civilization bears heavily upon us all. Civilization requires rules, amenities, restricted behavior, conformity with some sort of ethical code. In posing as civilized we must make ourselves considerate of other people, unselfish and high-minded. With a declaration of war, however, all rules are forgotten. All's fair in war, declares the venerable proverb. We feel like a child when school's out. We don't have to think any more. We are in an entirely new atmosphere. We can excuse the most outlandish and out-laws conduct on the perfectly irrational ground that a state of war exists. With all the abandon of an archer of 10 at the old swimmin' hole, our fine clothes are doffed and we dive back into barbarism, making Darwin's search for the missing link more hopeful than ever. When war enters the door, civilization flies out the window.—Laf.

The Marriage of Princesses.

The marriage of the late Duke of Argyll with Princess Louise was the first marriage, approved in Council, of a Princess of the Blood with a British subject since the passing of the Royal Marriage Act, the Duke of Sussex's marriage having beenmorganatic. It was said at the time that Princess Mary—Duchess of Teck and the mother of Queen Victoria—was very indignant, as Queen Victoria had refused her consent to a marriage she had wished to make with an English peer.

Sandman Story of Little Katie Who Longed for Pretty Clothes

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

KATIE was only 10 years old. Her earliest recollections were picking over potatoes with her brothers and sisters, and then she washed dishes for people who took summer boarders. But now Katie was to work for Mrs. Miller, who came every summer to the big house on the hill, and it would not be hard work, for she was to help the cook and make herself useful about the house.

Because Katie was poor, do not think she was resigned to her life of poverty. Far from it, for she rebelled against a life which denied her the means to have pretty clothes.

Mrs. Miller had a little girl about the age of Katie, and Mary Miller had many pretty dresses and bright-colored ribbons for her hair.

One morning Katie was sent upstairs to help with the linen and saw Mary dressed as if going to the city. She wore a gingham dress trimmed with red and shoes and stockings to match, and her hair was tied with a red ribbon.

All day Katie wondered how much money it would take to get the shoes and stockings.

But after she asked cook, Katie knew that she would never be allowed to spend half that amount for a whole outfit.

One day not long after that Mrs. Miller and Mary went into the city and took the maid with them, leaving Katie and the cook alone.

Katie sat in the kitchen for a while, when it suddenly occurred to her that now was her chance to try on the red costume. She ran upstairs to Mary's room and opened the closet door.

There on a hook hung the dress and on the floor were the shoes. Katie took them out, and then she opened a drawer to the chiffonier and took out the stockings. She opened another drawer and found the red ribbon. She pulled off her plain, coarse dress and shoes and stockings, and sat on the floor. She drew on the red stockings; the heel came in the middle of Katie's feet, but she did not mind. But it was different with the shoes, for try as hard as she would, her foot would not go in.

She put them aside and tied the red ribbon on a hook of her hair; then she put on the dress.

That fitted, and once more she tried the shoes. Her toes would go in, and although they hurt Katie sat her heel firmly on the back of the shoes and her costume was complete.

She was so lost in admiration that she did not hear the hall door open or hear steps on the stairs, and when someone said, "Katie, what are you doing here?" she was so frightened that she jumped, and the lock of hair tied with the ribbon fell over her eyes, making her look like a comical picture.

In the doorway stood Mrs. Miller and Mary, looking as if they thought Katie had taken leave of her senses.

Poor Katie started to run, but the shoes tripped her, and she fell, in all her finery, at Mr. Miller's feet.

"Now, tell me," said Mrs. Miller, "how you happened to come upstairs when we were out and why you put on Mary's dress."

Katie told her how she wanted her plain, coarse clothes, and wanted just once to wear a pretty dress.

"You poor child," said Mrs. Miller, in a low voice, and then she asked Katie how she would like to go to the city with her in the winter. "You can help the maids, and if I can get you a place as errand girl with a dressmaker, I know, you can learn the trade and some day you will be able to have the pretty dresses you want."

Katie's mother was very glad to have her go, and for several years Katie lived with Mrs. Miller, coming back with her every summer.

She worked with the dressmaker in the winter, and she found time to go to night school, too.

When Katie was 15 she was given a place in the dressmaker's shop with wages, and it was not long before she was able to support herself.

She has had many pretty dresses since the days she envied little Mary Miller, but none of them have given her the thrill that she felt when she first saw herself in Mary's red dress. (Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Don't Marry in Haste.

Any girl doubts which of two young men she loves the better she may be reasonably sure that she doesn't love either well enough to marry him and pass the rest of her life with him. And if any young man hesitates between two girls he ought not to propose to either.

Real love, the sort of love to marry on, has no doubt or wavering as to its object. To the true lover all other persons besides the beloved are irrelevant. He or she who hesitates isn't in love.

"W. D." writes: "I have been paying attention to a girl two years older than myself. I am 19. Now, my work has made it impossible for me to see any girl regularly, and I don't think I ought to ask the young lady to wait for me several years. I have told her all this, and have suggested that in the future we should be merely friendly acquaintances. Did I do right?"

I think you have acted sensibly.

How to Get Acquainted

"S. R." writes: "Every morning going to work I meet a nice young lady with whom I would like to get acquainted. I do not want to flirt with her, but I should like your advice as to how to meet her."

There is only one suitable way of getting acquainted, and that is through the introduction of a mutual friend.

Mizz Cuto writes: "If you had a sweetheart and he wasted three nights per week of your time for eight years and said, as his only excuse, that he had no money to marry and still wished to continue being your sweetheart and chum, would you wait until he had enough money to marry?"

Indeed, I would not. I think you have a heap of patience. If a man cannot in eight years get together enough to marry you on and make a home for you he isn't the sort to do it in 18 years.

Our Word "Mob"

JOHN GALSWORTHY'S new play, "The Mob," is a reminder of how a word may worry its way into respectability. "Mob," (mobile vulgar), meaning the rabble, was born in restoration days in England, but even by the time of Addison's Spectator it was only just struggling into recognition. "I dare not answer," wrote the Spectator, "that mob, rab, pos, incop, and the like, will not in time be looked at as part of our tongue." Swift, in the Tatler, confesses: "I have done the utmost for some years past to stop the progress of 'mob' and 'banter,' but have been plainly borne down by numbers."

Minds That Never Want to Change

We All Know Those People Who Face the World With an "I-Have-Spoken" Attitude

WE all know those people who have made a virtue of an unchanging mind, who say a thing and stick to it, expect nothing in their consciousness of their distinguishing difference from the remainder of the world.

These people not only face the world with an "I-have-spoken" attitude. Their sense of their own infallibility goes farther, and what they have said they have said for all time. There is none of the true mutability of nature in their minds—they set themselves outside the ebb and flow of life, the fluctuation which marks the process of existence, the procession of seedtime to harvest, and of the time of blossom to the time of fruition.

It is as if they demand that every flower shall open on the world full-blown, and shall know nothing of the its shades of progress which bring it to its time of perfect blossoming. Yes, there is the outstanding flaw in this type of mind, the inability to recognize the scheme of progress which runs through nature like a thread of gold. The mind of man is not immune to this universal law, and it is only in the event of stagnation and decay, of atrophy and nonfulfillment of possibilities that the mind of man can achieve immutability, immovable adherence to a creed, a belief, a school of thought, a convention. Continued thought may bring agreement, confirmation of the conclusions come to in earlier days, but that is agreement arrived at in hand with the newer knowledge, with the latest results of adventures in the world of thought.

MILLER ANGRY AT 'JUMPING' REPORT, WILL PLAY TODAY

Cardinals' First Sacker Threatens to Sue Scribes Who Misquote Him.

HIS FUTURE IS DUBIOUS

"Wise Guys" on the Inside Say It's Just a Matter of Money With "Dots."

By W. J. O'CONNOR.

There were tears in Jack Miller's eyes Wednesday morning when he denied that he had jumped to the Federal League. "The next guy who misquotes me will be brought into court," said Jack to the Post-Dispatch when seen at the West End Hotel.

"I'm going to play with the Cardinals this afternoon and I'm going to keep my mouth shut for all time," Miller added, "because every time I speak I get in wrong. I have said nothing about jumping to the Federal League, but I see they have me all signed up. I've had enough and want to be left alone."

Miller reported for morning practice Wednesday and gave every assurance that he would be on the job when the game began this afternoon. In spite of the positive statements made Tuesday that he had taken the Cardinals.

While Miller emphatically denies that he has signed with the Cardinals, the wiseguys who are on the "inside" facts say that the clever first-sacker has accepted terms. It is only a question of whether the Cardinals will deliver on enough cash to make Miller's move worth while, it is said. Miller refuses to deny or affirm this statement.

Miller Has Grievance.

It is known, though, that Miller is slightly displeased with the treatment he received at the hands of President Britton. He has been and still is the most conscientious workman on the Cardinals club. However, when the rumors of his alleged negotiations with the Federal League got abroad he was not treated as a player, but as a man who had jumped.

Other players, notably Sam Rice, were called into the president's office and given a lecture on the substantial increases. Miller feels slighted, his friends say, because he was not treated the same way.

It's Up to Britton.

Manager Huggins absolutely refuses to have anything to say. "This is a question for President Britton to settle," declared Huggins after Tuesday's game. "I'm not going to be able to win ball games with the players I have on the field and if any of them leave I'll have to go along with them."

President Britton has taken a decided stand. He says: "I have gone the limit with the players. Many of them are getting salaries out of all proportion to their worth and I absolutely refuse to remain in the business purely for the sake of the profits. This season hasn't been big and if we are forced to give out more receipts to the players we might just as well close up. I'll not change another contract."

Another big going the rounds is that certain Cardinals players will jump just as soon as they receive their salary envelope June 1. If they were to hurdle over the fence, it is said, they could collect their pay for the past 15 days. So they will play it safe, by waiting until after June 1. This is all speculation, however.

Brooklyn Federal Owners Buy a Minor League to Use as Farm, Is Rumor

NEW YORK, May 27.—A story was current in Washington Park in Brooklyn that the Wards, owners of the Brooklyn club, had purchased the strongest financial combination of the minor leagues now in organized baseball. The Wards, while denying the purchase had been made, did not deny that it was being considered.

As a matter of fact, a rumor which has been floating since the East for some weeks says the Wards not only own the league referred to, the Colonial, but have owned it from the beginning of the season, having organized it as a circuit for young players. The circuit is composed of Fall River, New Bedford, Taunton, Pawtucket, Brockton and Weymouth. The Wards, it is said, are the Wards of Providence, R. I., and are the Wards of the Lowell club in 1908.

RUSKIN, PAYING 9 TO 2, WINS THE METROPOLITAN

NEW YORK, May 27.—Ruskin, a 4-year-old gelding, owned by John W. Wicks, ridden by Jockey Wicks, won the Metropolitan Handicap, the feature of the day of racing at Belmont Park, yesterday. The track record of 1:17 was made four years ago by Fashion Plate, was made by Ruskin in 1910. Ruskin was owned and trained by the late J. W. Wicks, who died last year.

WRAITH'S COLUMN

A New Title Factor.

WHEN Charley White—which is short of Charles Anichewitz, sometime of Liverpool, England—did a complete and altogether successful job of landscape gardening on the map of Champion Willie Ritchie, at Milwaukee, Tuesday night, he shed some light on the mystery of Ritchie's career since winning the title on a foul.

His victory, which took the champion altogether by surprise, indicated that William, deep down in the well of his own thoughts, knew he was not quite of championship timber, whom men like Britton, Welch and Duffy were considered. Charley White, a man of smaller build than himself, he apparently had a poor line on. He let himself be lured into the 10-round disaster at Milwaukee.

Willie a Great Side-Stepper.

SINCE he slipped into the title on a foul, Ritchie has met few men whom he considered more than ordinary dangerous. Among those he met were Joe Rivers, who was known on the coast as a faint-hearted boxer, several times beaten; Tommy Murphy, who was practically known as a champion; and Ad Wolgast, a short fight—whom he was sure he could outbox, if not out-fight.

He has run away from Fred Welch, Jack Britton and Jimmy Duffy. Any one of these men figured to give Ritchie a serious contest, so Willie side-stepped. It was just as easy for him to get the coin by meeting men whom he had hated lower in the scale of efficiency.

What White did to him is chronicled elsewhere. By surface to say that the operation was complete and, were decisions rendered at Milwaukee, Ritchie would be today an overthrown champion.

Money Talks.

WHAT will happen to him when he fights Freddie Welsh or Jack Britton, who beat Charley White in 15 rounds last year? Probably the only consideration that lines him up with the Britton is the $40,000 guarantee which he is to receive for a battle in London.

White Has Been "Coming."

SEVERAL months ago attention was called in this column to the rapid advance of White. The most surprising advance of recent months perhaps was his defeat of Jimmy Duffy in a no-decision fight. He was supposed to be a formidable man at the 10-round game and he won over the former champion. He won over Wolgast last December, knocked out a tough boy like Kid Kansas twice and Mickey Sheridan, he treated similarly. Jake Abel, Joe Thomas, George Myers and Oscar Williams also joined with their reputations by the "kayo" route. His one setback was the defeat by Britton at New Orleans, July 4, 1912.

Too Light for Big Boys?

WHITE is only 23 and as late as 1911 the good ones were beating him. Bobby Vaughn beat him in Fort Worth in that year and Joe Mandot outpointed him. Battling Schultz and Benny Kaufmann were good enough to draw with him. Since then he has improved and strengthened. There is no doubt that he can give them all a run, though Britton, Ritchie and Duffy are boys of bigger frame than he.

Feds' Ruining Rival Clubs.

THE Federal League has caused a condition of unrest in baseball and the worst accompanying feature of it is the financial loss to the Cardinals and the other opponents, but the disrupting of baseball clubs and the diminishing of interest in them.

Stories of the breaking up of the Cardinals by the Feds have put the local team completely in the air, just as it appeared about to sport to the front. Men.

COBBLESS TIGERS WIN 2 GAMES IN 7, LOSE LEAGUE LEAD

Absence of World's Greatest Attacking Player Deprives Detroit of Punch.

By Clarence F. Lloyd.

TY Cobb's absence from the Tiger lineup may turn some of Hugh Jennings' red hair gray. The Peach, for the first time in his big-league career, is now on the shelf because of an injury and as a result the Jolly Jungeers have relinquished the lead in the American League race to the Nationals of Griffith.

The switch came about Tuesday when the Griffins, with Southpaw Joe Boelling, finished that game and started the one following day, but had to give way to Hughey High, the St. Louis boy. The Tigers lost that day, 6-1.

Call for Mr. Cobb.

Including the May 19 game, the Tigers have played seven games without Cobb and have won only two contests. The Cobbless Tigers won one and lost one to the Red Sox; won one out of three from the Athletics and have lost the two games played to date to the Nationals. They have lost the last four games played. In the last seven games the Tigers have been sailing along at a 285 gain, whereas the Athletics have lost 100 and the Nationals have lost 150.

Cobb's absence has hurt considerably. It is a fact that Hughey Jennings' pitchers have fumbled at a time when they are needed most. In the last seven games played, George Daus has pitched the lone sterling game unopposed by any member of the Jungeers leaving troupe. He pitched a shutout against the Red Sox, May 23. Dubuc's game Tuesday was fair, but he allowed three runs, one more than was nicked off.

In the five other games—including the one the Jungeers won from the Athletics—the Tigers have lost four or more runs. The Athletics got four or more runs in the last week by the five games lost in the last week by the Tigers, the pitchers have allowed an average of more than seven runs to the game.

When Cobb was examined by physicians after being picked by Foster, it was announced that he would be out for a week or ten days. He's apt to break in on one or both of the remaining games with the Nationals, as he's sadly needed. If he doesn't he's sure to re-enter the lineup when the Tigers play the double-header with the Browns at Sportsman's Park Saturday, as the Tigers always receive keen competition here.

The Browns have more than held their own with the Jungeers. They have played eight games this season and the count is 4-3-1. Had the other teams done this well, the Tigers would not have reigned so long as the American League leaders.

Yale Crews Put Back in American-Rigged Boat; British Coach Resigns

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 27.—According to a story printed in the Journal-Courier today, Guy Nickalls, the old Oxford oarsman and coach of the Yale crew, resigned his position Monday. The reason given for the resignation is friction between Mr. Nickalls and the members of the Yale Rowing Committee over the result of the Blue's showing in the race at Lake Cayuga last Saturday, in which Yale was defeated by Cornell and Princeton. A serious difference of opinion arose, the paper says, over the rigging of the shell.

The English-rigged shell, with its three pins and horizontal slides which has been in use by the Yale crewmen since the arrival of Coach Nickalls, was abandoned by them today for an American-rigged boat with oarlocks and inclined slides.

ONE BROKEN NOSE, TWO BLACKED EYES, FRONT TEETH OUT

That's How Champion Willie Ritchie Stacked Up After White Finished With Him.

MILWAUKEE, May 27.—If a decision were permissible under the law of Wisconsin, Charley White of Chicago, would be lightweight champion of the world today. What he did to Willie Ritchie is not in the pugilistic category. It was a slaughter with the Chicago Ghetto lad the winner by such a wide margin that the newspaper decision was unanimous.

Why White did not score a knockout can be attributed to two things: First he was playing it safe; second, because Ritchie is about the gamest lad that ever stepped into a Badger ring. The ex-champion's face resembled a hamburger steak at the finish, both eyes being closed, his nose broken and his front teeth out. White did not have a visible mark, although an old cut on his lip was reopened, bringing the blood.

Round after round White peppered jabbed and punched Ritchie around the ring. The Frisco boy never had a chance. He could not see at the finish and his efforts to hit White were futile. Whenever he reached Charley he clinched. When he went to the ropes he made an effort to save himself from going down. He had to be pointed to his corner when the bell rang a round.

White fought a careful championship battle. He was never better and was as cool as an iceberg at all stages. He made the visitor look like a second rate when it came to boxing. In short he outclassed his man so far that no one would have given Ritchie credit for being the title holder.

Champion Ritchie's End of $14,000 Fight Gate Was $10,000; Club Lost

CHICAGO, May 27.—Chicago papers are unanimous today in saying that Charley White gave Champion Willie Ritchie one of the most decisive beatings ever administered a title holder in a limited-round bout in which there was no knock-out.

There have been no negotiations for a return battle and it is regarded as altogether unlikely that Ritchie will be anxious for another encounter. The gate receipts were a severe disappointment to the Queensberry Athletic Club. Manager Tom Andrews said they were approximately $14,000. Ritchie's guarantee was $10,000. The club lost money.

Five races, including eight events, are on the program for the opening night's entertainment at the motorrome Wednesday evening. The contests will introduce some of the fastest riders of the board track circuit. As an added feature to the opening of the motor cycle racing season here, a parade has been arranged. Starting from the Hotel Jefferson at 7:15 o'clock, at least 500 motor cyclists are expected to busa their way to the motorrome over the following route: West on Locust to Thrasher, north to Washington, west to Grand, south to the motorrome.

At Last Bat Nelson Says He's Through

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—Batting Nelson is through at last. He has actually refused a fistic engagement. In a letter to Promoter James W. Coffroth the "Durable Dane" writes that never again will he hear the shriek of encouragement from the ring-side. He is through, that's all, and from now on he will devote his energies toward entertaining the after-goers in a stiff front shirt with tales of "What I Did Once."

The battle's final decision came as a reply to Promoter Coffroth, who, acting in behalf of Gregory Mitchell, his assistant and a four-round promoter, made the former light-weight champion an offer to appear in a Friday night show.

Nelson's decision was unexpected, as it was the general belief that he would box as long as he could climb through the ropes. He had said that he would retire before, but always fell for the lure of the purses and the plaudits of the fans.

Many tablets found in forgotten ruins indicate a knowledge of the game of baseball among the Egyptians. In the time of the Greeks football had gained some prominence.

The public is invited to attend the game. It will introduce the two best school boys' teams in St. Louis, aggregations that won the right to play for the championship in the preliminary and elimination rounds. No admission will be charged and there will be ample space in the huge grand stand for all.

The Marquette team, located at 4200 McPherson avenue, has beaten such teams as the Crow, Baker, Rock Springs, Jackson and Garfield teams. The Delmar team, located in University City, final round by defeating the Bryan Hill team, champions of North St. Louis, in the semi-final round last Saturday.

Each team is expected to be accompanied to Sportsman's Park by a large delegation of its followers. Any seat in the park may be taken by those attending.

Prizes to Be Awarded.

In addition to the championship game between the Marquette and Delmar teams, the prizes won by other teams in the Post-Dispatch League will be awarded Saturday morning.

To each winning team in the division championships will be presented a banner, emblematic of the division championship. A special banner will be awarded to the loser in Saturday's game while the winning team will receive the championship banner. The members of the winning team will receive gold championship medals.

Hidden Ball Rises From the Grave to Help Cardinals Defeat Boston

THE sepulcher opened Tuesday, and out came our old friend, the "Hidden Ball Trick," which has been missing, in these many moons. Indeed it has been upward of two years since the hidden ball was used on the enemy team and the 1908 bugs who viewed Tuesday's game got up and yelled when Huggins and Miller worked it on Martin, nipping a brave rally in its incipency in the seventh. The Cards won, 4-2.

Three double plays helped immensely in giving the game to the proteges of Miller Huggins. At that, Willie Deak seemed to be in trouble in the late rounds and he was derided in favor of Harry Salter. Salter, however, who snatched the enemy in the eighth and ninth.

Johnny Evers, alias "Bratna," Keystone Kins and "Crab," called Umpire Higley a fathead in the third inning and was sentenced to a cool shower. The day was hot, but Evers didn't so much as thank Higley for his kindness.

Evers said a lot of things to Higley that he didn't learn in the Bible. Johnny suggested that Higley put on a Cardinal suit so that he wouldn't be confused with the other umpires. Higley tried hard to avoid a physical clash with the Boston second-sacker, but was just on the verge of bouncing a right swing off Evers' protruding chin-chopper when Manager Stallings sent umpires from the bench to lead Evers away. Dugan went to second.

SPORTS SALAD BY L.C. DAVIS.

A Period of Unrest.

O H, rooters, dear, and did you hear? The news that's going round? They say that with the Federals Jack Miller will be found. I met with Schuyler Britton And I slipped him on the back; Said I: "How are the Cardinals, And how's the pitcher back?" "It's the toughest proposition That the world has ever seen. The Federals are tempting all my men With barrels of long green."

See by the papers where the Cards put the Beans on the port yesterday.

It has been said by eminent authorities on the subject that the walk from the plate to the bench, after striking out, seems like an endless journey. But think of the poor fellow who has to walk from first base to the bench on the hidden ball trick. Eh, Martin!

Or a Bit of Bone.

Martin couldn't have been more surprised if Huggins had walked up and pulled a rabbit from under his cap.

These little feats of legerdemain add to the interest of the game. It's worth the price of admission alone to see "Cosy" Dolan juggle the ball with one hand while extracting a bowl of goldfish from his blouse with the other.

A Wisconsin U. professor has discovered that bas-relief was played by the ancient Egyptians. Many tablets found in ruins are inscribed with strange hieroglyphics which bear a striking resemblance to our present-day box scores and indicate that Ptolemy to Ramesses to Isis was a famous triple play, centuries before Tinker and Evers and Chance.

Ramesses was a famous infielder in his day, playing every position on the infield, as indicated by tablets bearing inscription Ramesses I, Ramesses II and Ramesses III.

Quimet Wins Way to Final Round in Foreign Event

VERSAILLES, May 27.—Two Americans, Francis Quimet and Henry J. Topping, were left to fight out the final round for the French amateur golf championship to be played off here tomorrow.

Quimet beat Apperley in the semi-final by 4 up and 3 to play.

Topping beat Travers, 3 up and 2 to play the semi-final.

Francis Quimet, American open champion, beat Lord Charles Hope, holder of the title, by 1 up in the third round of the French amateur golf championship today.

Jerome D. Travers, American amateur champion, beat his fellow-countryman, Frederick Herrschaft of New York, by 5 up and 4 to play, in the third round.

Henry J. Topping of Greenwich, Conn., beat F. Le Stan of Lille by 1 up in the third round.

Eric Apperley of Sydney, New South Wales, beat W. W. Bowers, an American member of La Boule Club, by 1 up in the third round.

The puts three Americans in the fifth round.

The feature match of the day was that between Quimet and Lord Hope. Quimet was stymied at the first hole and knocked Hope's ball in. Both missed two foot putts at the third. Quimet did not put so well as yesterday. He got into several bunkers, but made good recoveries. Hope, for his part, allied several blunders. At the turn Hope was 1 up. The cards were:

Out—Quimet . . . 564 553 555—43

Hope . . . 454 644 645—43

In—Quimet . . . 454 644 645—43

CORNELL EIGHT-OARED CREW BEATS HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 27.—Cornell's eight-oared variety crew defeated Harvard in their annual race on the Charles River yesterday. Cornell's time was 22:35, the Harvard crew's time was 23:35, the time difference representing a half boat's length. The Cornell freshman crew from Harvard's freshman crew. Schell, No. 6 in the Harvard boat, collapsed after the race.

Manager Stallings issued a statement giving in detail his alibi for being last. This statement had it that Umpire Higley was prejudiced against Boston because Stallings refused to declare him in on the sale of a player, or something to that effect. It is important that all losing clubs present such alibis to the public.

Magee put the quietus on a brave rally in the fourth. After the enemy had scored one run a double and two singles, Lee caught Whaling's drive in deep center and made a sparkling throw to Beck, doubling Gilbert going to third. It was fortunate that Beck took the throw and Dolan backed up. Yes, it was fortunate, but never mind.

The game was uninteresting most of the time although three double plays by the Cardinals and one by the Braves enlivened the proceedings in spots. Dock seemed to be a late in the game and Manager Huggins played it safe by calling in Salter, who was at his best.

Having lost Monday's game, it was Cosy Dolan's turn to win one. He did. One game in the fourth, he singled, stole second and scored ahead of Wilson when the Chief's line drive to left got past Connor for a home run. Connor took two plays on the defense that would put Mike Mowrey to shame.

The Cards made more hits off Hase Tuesday than they did in many a day. Ten safe hits, above the average, Huggins combed three singles and scored two runs, having the biggest stick average of the afternoon.

BROWNS PREVENT ATHLETICS FROM PASSING TIGERS

Victory by Rickeyites Averts a More Severe Jolting to Jolly Junglers.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—Branch Rickey's Browns distinguished themselves when they kept the Athletics from slipping into second place by defeating the world's champions yesterday, 6-4. Had the Mackmen won, the Tigers would have dropped to third place.

The Browns now have a change to get another red mark. It is possible for them to get the better of the series here this week. No club has yet been able to take the measure of the White Elephants at Shibe Park this season and only one club has done so away from home. This was New York in the first two games of the season, which were played at the Polo Grounds.

Up to date the Athletics have taken part in 10 series, seven at home and three on the road. They lost one series at New York and one here with the Chicago White Sox, won six and the one with the Browns is even up at two games played and two unplayed. Thus the St. Louis team has an opportunity to wind up his Eastern trip in a blaze of glory.

More Praise for Rickey.

The Rickeyes have played mighty fine ball here, even though they have been guilty of some errors in the field.

No one imagined that they would be able to pull off such an ancient trick as the hidden ball trick on the Athletics, but they did it in great style when Wares got C. Walker's throw in, following a two-bagger by Strunk. Everyone woke up with a jerk when Umpire Connolly called Strunk out after Wares touched Amos when he stroled off the bag. It has been years since the hidden ball trick has been worked in this city.

Joe Bush will probably be sent against the Browns this afternoon or the assignment may fall to Bob Shawkey, while George Baumgardner will likely get Manager Rickey's order to pitch for the Browns.

Right, Old Top!

A man stated the other day that he had used the same packet of Gillette Blades for more than three months. "Some Blades!" he says—"my face never felt so good as it does now." Try 1914 Gillette Blades.

When and Why in Shirtdom

IF it's for work, your shirt must be sturdy. If it's for sport, it must be cool. If it's for dress, it must be smart. If it's for any time any day, it must be absolutely good are carefully modeled and needled. They are scientifically sized and captivatingly styled. They level up to or down to any income. But, at any price, they are as good as shirts can be. There's a fashion and fabric for every event.

Your clothier or haberdasher will supply you with McDonald Shirts if you insist. You may have them in a soft, wonderful silk of a charming pattern. You may have a silk and woolen mixture. You may have a soft Percal or Madras. Or, you may have Chambrays and chevots—sturdy, wear-resisting styles for work or camp.

McDonald Shirts are sold at all good dealers from $1.00 up.

"A little better for the money"—That's the McDonald slogan.

"Get Up" and Get

Don't you back up or stop until you've tried U. S. MARINE. It's the one perfect tobacco for the big, two-fisted, out-of-doors man who wants a rich, mellow tobacco for both chewing and smoking.

You get hold of U. S. MARINE. Note the honest sweetness of this pure Kentucky leaf, aged for three to five years to bring out all its mellow fragrance and flavor. U. S. MARINE has the genuine snap and taste that you want in tobacco.

U.S. MARINE Cut Plug Tobacco is purposely made up for the sturdy man who is hungry for a real man's tobacco. For many years all sorts of brands have tried to beat out U. S. MARINE but the old he-boy is still the king-brand of them all.

Nothing fancy about the U. S. MARINE package—we put all the cost into the tobacco. As you say of a horse, "he's all horse"—so we say of U. S. MARINE—"it's all tobacco."

U. S. MARINE is the longest lasting 5c worth of good tobacco ever sold. Slow burning in the pipe. The flavor is enduring when you chew.

Hitch up with U. S. MARINE for a week's trial, and you and U. S. MARINE will always pull together like a well-matched team.

Sold everywhere in 5c packages.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY

MAKE $200.00 A MONTH

IF you are making less than $50 a month, you should write us today. We can help you to wealth and independence by our plan; you can work when you please, when you please, always have money and the means of making plenty more of it.

JUST LISTEN TO THIS. One man started from San Francisco and traveled to New York. He stayed at the best hotels, lived like a lord, and when he was tired and when there was nothing special to do, he started out on any street he happened to select, and took in $8.00 a day for months after months. This is the way you can do it.

WE TRUST YOU

SO MUCH CONFIDENCE HAVE we in our proposition that we TRUST YOU for part of the cost of the outfit. The regular selling price of the camera and complete working outfit is reasonable. The profits are so big, so quick, so sure, that you could afford to pay the full price if we asked you to do so. But we are absolutely certain that you can make big money from the start that we trust you for a substantial run, which you need not pay for until you have $200.00 the first month. FAIR ENOUGH, ISN'T IT? Do not delay a minute but write us today for our free catalog and full particulars.
